Who Can Match Quebec In Minority Treatment?

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Parliamentary Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield Tuesday defended the Quebec government's treatment of the English-speaking minority in the province.

In a question-and-answer session with students at the University of Windsor, the Progressive Conservative party head said Canadians in other provinces should not adopt a "holier-than-thou attitude" towards Quebec.

"We should start asking ourselves how many other provinces have equalled Quebec in its treatment of a minority," Stanfield said.

He said the Liberal government is "putting far too much importance on defining rights" and not enough stress on the people's ability to exercise those rights.

Dishes Rattled Far Away By Walloping Test Blast

Continued Los Angeles Times Service

LOS ANGELES — A hydrogen atomic blast with the wallop of a strong earthquake was detonated under the Nevada desert Tuesday, rattling dishes and swinging chandeliers as far away as Los Angeles and Salt Lake City.

The blast was equal to 800,000 tons of TNT and reportedly was the third largest ever set off at the Nevada test site 115 miles from Las Vegas.

Observers watching on closed-circuit television said the earth at ground zero jumped 15 feet when the device was set off.

Pictures taken from a helicopter showed the earth bulging upward and a series of cracks 50 to 70 feet wide appearing around the edges of the bulge. As the ground settled back the cracks disappeared.

The Atomic Energy Commission reported no radioactive dust or gas had been vented into the air.

James Brune, California Institute of Technology professor and supervisor of the seismograph there, reported the magnitude of the shock as 6 on the Richter scale said aftershocks will continue for several days. They will be too weak to be felt without the seismograph, however, he said.

A magnitude 6 earthquake is strong enough to do considerable damage but no damage was reported. Residents of older buildings in Beatty, Nev., 30 miles from the site, were evacuated as a precaution.

In Los Angeles the blast was described as differing from an earthquake in not having the characteristic rolling motion of a distant quake.

"It was more of a sudden shock followed by a vibration," one man said.

At the test site a plywood shack 30 feet from ground zero was knocked several feet off the ground but fell back apparently undamaged.

There was no damage at Las

35,000 Pulling Out

Troops Sorry About Timing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon declared "the time has come to end this war" and announced Tuesday that at least 35,000 more United States troops will be withdrawn from South Vietnam by Dec. 15. The number could go higher.

Draft Halt?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House indicated Tuesday President Nixon is considering suspending the military draft, at least for a time. Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said the idea had been talked about from time to time but he declined to confirm or deny that it was a likely possibility in the near future.

The new pullout will bring to 60,000 the number of American forces removed since Nixon became president and drop U.S. strength in Vietnam to the lowest point in 22 months. The withdrawal begins immediately, the White House said. Most of the forces pulled out will be ground units rather than air or naval, and half of them combat types.

NEW STRATEGY

Nixon's announcement, which he called a "significant step," came as the White House said it is possible that North Vietnam—recovering from the death of President Ho Chi Minh—may be ready to adopt a new strategy in the stalemated Paris peace negotiations.

White House sources said they are not predicting which way Hanoi may go—toughen its war stance or show signs of realistic negotiating—but said the U.S. position is flexible.

In Saigon, South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu described the decision a sign that the South Vietnamese army is growing stronger.

But U.S. soldiers who have fought alongside the South Vietnamese army sharply disagreed. The South Vietnamese, they said, cannot fill the vacuum caused by U.S. troop withdrawals.

LITTLE SURPRISE

A U.S. officer who has worked for 10 months in the Mekong Delta area, now defended entirely by government troops, said:

"They've turned the delta into a testing ground for the South Vietnamese—it's a do-or-die situation—and they're just not going to do it."

But troops questioned at random in Saigon showed little surprise at the U.S. president's decision. Most appeared unexcited by the news and one, who asked

'Drop by Drop' Inspires Hope

PARIS (UPI) — The Vietnam communists poured scorn on the new American troop withdrawal Tuesday but coupled it with a phrase which qualified diplomatic officials said could be significant.

The Viet Cong's "Provisional Revolutionary Government" scoffed at the plan to pull 35,000 more troops out as "drop by drop" withdrawal.

The possible significance of the "drop by drop" phrase, according to the qualified diplomatic officials who declined to be identified, was that it appeared to be the first communist admission that earlier U.S. troop withdrawals had, in fact, taken place.

DEMAND REPEATED

The spokesman for the Hanoi delegation immediately endorsed the Viet Cong statement, and repeated Hanoi's demand for immediate, complete and unconditional withdrawal of all U.S. troops.

The official Soviet news agency Tass Tuesday described as a "propaganda manoeuvre" Nixon's plans for the withdrawal.

"The earlier so-called reduction of U.S. troop strength in South Vietnam by 25,000 was regarded by the world public as a propaganda manoeuvre and an effort to deceive the world public opinion," said Tass.

EFFORT TO CALM

"Today's announcement about new reductions, as the previous one, is an effort to calm the American public opinion and to weaken demands all over the world for an end to the Vietnam war and withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Vietnam," said Tass.

In another Paris development, the North Vietnamese delegation agreed to meet four U.S. Air Force wives who want to know if their husbands are prisoners of war or dead.

QUICKLY LEFT

The four women, three from Dallas and the fourth from Fort Worth, Tex., went to the North Vietnamese headquarters in suburban Choisy Le Roi Tuesday but left again after 15 minutes inside.

A North Vietnamese spokesman said: "The four ladies

Taiwan Buying Reactor

OTTAWA (CP) — The Chinese Atomic Energy Council in Taiwan has contracted to buy a $35,000,000 nuclear research reactor from Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., it was announced Tuesday.

AECL and Canadian commercial firms will supply $28,000,000 worth of the equipment and materials for the reactor, similar to the research reactor Canada built co-operatively with India near Bombay for the Indian atomic energy department.

The deal with the Nationalist Chinese is the first commercial reactor sale by AECL since it assumed sole responsibility last year for export marketing of Canadian nuclear reactors.

PEACEFUL USE

The Chinese agreed, as a condition of the sale, to accept the safeguards of the International Atomic Energy Agency to ensure the installation is used only for peaceful purposes.

The reactor is an improved version of the NRX reactor at Chalk River, Ont., and the Cirrus reactor at Bombay. It is a purely research tool and can be used for production of radioactive isotopes. It is not an electric power generating installation.

$50,000 Cabinet Warrant

Extra Outlay Paid Pre-Election Ads

By IAN STREET

Legislative Reporter

Trade Minister Waldo Skilling confirmed Tuesday that a special warrant for $50,000 approved by the cabinet Sept. 11 but only made public Monday was to cover advertising expenses prior to the Aug. 27 election.

The minister said his department handles advertising expenses for a number of government departments, and added he believes the warrant boosting the advertising and publicity budget from $75,000 to $125,000 is to cover the cost of explaining the government's stand on pollution control.

Prior to the election, a series of newspaper ads appeared over the names of the health department, and jointly on behalf of the health, water resources and municipal affairs departments.

Mr. Skilling said the money authorized by cabinet is owed to the Vancouver advertising firm of Gordon Kowntree and Co. Ltd., which placed the government ads in newspapers.

He added that he doesn't believe there will be further special warrants required to cover the cost of ads run before the election to publicize the homeowner grant, B.C. party bonds, human rights and the workmen's compensation programs.

Opposition parties criticized the newspaper ads placed by government departments before the election as political propaganda.

The 28-year-old steelworker from Whalley, in hospital with a suspected ankle fracture, explained Tuesday the reasons for his future care:

"I have been out seven times in the last three years.

UN Assembly Opens

One-Vote Defender Elected

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The General Assembly got off to a smooth start Tuesday with election of a woman lawyer from Liberia as president. But sharp debate on war and peace issues lay ahead for the delegates from 126 member nations.

By secret ballot, Angie Brooks, at 41 already a veteran UN diplomat, was elected assembly president. She had no formal opposition.

The opening day was devoted mainly to organizational and ceremonial affairs, but privately delegates to the 24th session were already exchanging views on the undeclared war in the Middle East, disarmament, and the problems of Africa.

But UN diplomats agreed that quiet diplomacy rather than public debate provided virtually the only chance of making progress on basic issues confronting the world organization.

Red Warning to China

Pipeline Spouts Threat

LONDON (UPI) — A Soviet spokesman who frequently acts as a pipeline abroad for the Kremlin hinted Tuesday that the Soviet Union might intervene militarily in Red China and did not rule out an attack on China's nuclear weapons installations.

Victor Louis, a Moscow correspondent who forecast the fall from power of Nikita Khrushchev in 1964, gave the hint in the London newspaper, The Evening News.

Pointing to a possible Czechoslovakia-type Soviet intervention, Louis said it was "quite possible" that forces

From UPI

Israeli jet fighter planes Tuesday ended a one-day lull in the air war against the Arab states with double raids into Egypt and Jordan. The Jordanians said one of the Israeli raiders was shot down in flames.

Amman said two formations of Israeli planes attacked two villages in the north Jordan Valley and that two men and two women were injured.

He said one of the jets was hit by anti-aircraft fire and crashed in flames across the Jordan River near Beisan in Israel. He said an Israeli helicopter was seen later flying to the scene of the crash.

A few hours later Israeli planes flew two separate strikes against Egyptian military targets on the western shore of the Gulf of Suez, the Tel Aviv spokesman said.

Some western diplomats speculated that Louis' report was inspired by the Kremlin only to frighten the Peking regime.

Louis said the Soviet Union preferred using rockets to manpower and said Russia has "a variety of rockets to choose from, depending on the terrain and other circumstances."

"Events in the past year have confirmed that the Soviet Union is adhering to the doctrine that socialist countries have the right to interfere in each other's affairs in their own interest or those of others who are threatened," Louis wrote.

"The fact that China is many times larger than Czechoslovakia and might offer active resistance is according to these Marxist theoreticians no reason for not applying the doctrine."

STRATEGY QUESTION "Whether or not the Soviet Union will dare to attack Lop Nor, China's nuclear centre, is a question of strategy and so the world would only learn about it afterwards."

"Usually well-informed sources in Moscow were surprised at Western excitement over the Soviet plan to launch an air attack on Lop Nor."

Nobody here has a shadow of a doubt that Russian nuclear installations stand aimed at the Chinese nuclear facilities."

Belfast Catholics Sticky

Barricades Tumble With Reluctance

BELFAST (AP) — The barricades began falling in Belfast Tuesday but British troops sent in to help with the work encountered stout opposition on some streets in the Roman Catholic Falls Road district.

Debates and confusion on the streets and among civil rights leaders slowed the dismantling operation in the Catholic stronghold. But some leaders predicted the area would be clear by today.

The Citizens' Defence Committee, which claims to run the area, announced early Tuesday it had received adequate assurances of military protection and immunity from arrest under Ulster's Special Powers Act and that dismantling work would begin.

APPEALS AIDED But "Radio Free Belfast," run by the militant Catholic students' organization, People's Democracy, broadcast appeals throughout the morning to keep the makeshift barricades up pending a Tuesday night meeting of the defence committee.

The committee met later and announced that it agreed to the removal of the barricades. Members said they would arrange a timetable with the British troop commander in the capital.

The first breach was made by men and women living close to barricades on a small street bordering the Falls Road. Militants tried to make them change their minds, but they began to tear down the piles of paving stones, and by mid-afternoon at least six streets had been cleared.

At one rampart, a weeping priest pleaded with a reluctant crowd to remove the barricades.

The British Army sealed the entire area and moved in 1,500 troops to help with the work and to "provide massive protection" for the Catholic population.

However, heated debates went on inside some barricades, and it appeared the military might encounter serious opposition in clearing streets held by militants.

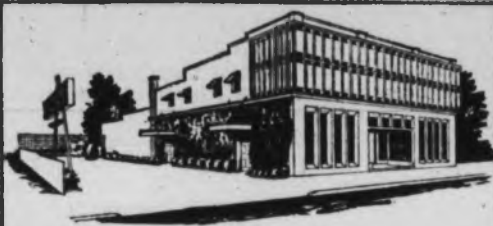

At one barricade about 20 women staged a sit-down to prevent the army from dismantling their stronghold, and the troops moved on to another.

Belfast's Catholic minority threw up the barricades during last month's Catholic-Protestant clashes. The Protestants also built barriers but removed them voluntarily after the army strung a barbed wire "peace line" between the two communities.

Lt.-Gen. Sir Ian Freeland, commander of the 7,500 British troops in Northern Ireland, met Monday with British Prime Minister Wilson and Home Secretary James Callaghan and returned from London Tuesday with orders to take down the barricades.

In Londonderry, leaders of the barricaded Bogside area announced they would build their ramparts higher to protest the British government's insistence that they be removed.

UN Failure Brings a Warning

CANADA'S AMBASSADOR to the United Nations, Yvon Beaulne, has expressed "profound disappointment" at the failure of the eight-nation working group, of which this country is a member, to establish even the terms of reference for creation of practical peace-keeping machinery.

The committee could not even agree, he complained, on the role of the Security Council in the control of observer missions in areas of crisis, or their financing and command.

It seems that the impasse at New York is due to the differences which have existed for some time between the Western nations and the Eastern (Soviet) bloc, which incidentally is supported by France in refusing to make any financial contribution to peace-keeping forces.

But the working group—comprising, besides Canada, the United States, Britain, the Soviet Union, France, Czechoslovakia, Egypt and Mexico—did not come near to agreement on the issue of policing the peace on the pattern of the Palestine arrangement that preceded in 1967 war.

It could not find common ground in discussions on rules for establishment and maintenance of observer missions, such as those now attempting to operate on behalf of the United Nations and to report on developments in the Middle East.

But the United Nations Security Council, while the working group of the General Assembly was floundering with its problems, voted 11-0 to condemn Israel for its failure to heed injunctions against occupying the Arab section of Jerusalem. There were four abstentions by Western members.

It is becoming increasingly clear, in spite of the best intentions of Secretary-General U Thant, that the usefulness of the United Nations as a peace-keeper must be seriously questioned.

Member nations are moved too frequently by motives of self-interest, racial or ideological bias, rather than the precepts of the Charter.

The UN has become a forum for debate rather than decision.

In fact it appears the whole apparatus has become so unwieldy, so political, that the universal concept of its founders has tended to shackle its effectiveness in any but non-political fields.

Mr. Beaulne's warning, after this most recent failure, should banish complacency and indifference, and bring to all nations the full sense of their responsibility, and the urgency of action.

"We have wrestled with basic questions of principle which have threatened in the past to destroy the very fabric of the organization; questions which, if they remain unresolved, may yet render the international community helpless to contain and control."

Mr. Beaulne's voice should be heeded. It is a cry of desperation, almost of despair.

Toward Less Expensive Homes

IT IS OF SOME comfort to have company in being unable to solve quickly the problem of building satisfactory homes that persons of average or lower-than-average means can afford. Canada has it, immediately to the south. And if answers are to be found, it seems likely they will first emerge there, in the birthplace of mass production—not, of course, that Canadians should relax and wait.

What the Economic Council of Canada has just said about the state of the housing industry in this country would apply almost equally to the United States: "... We are concerned about the fact that such a basic industry as housing is beset by archaic attitudes, institutions, restrictions and other problems—including a multiplicity of obstructive building and zoning codes, small-scale and relatively inefficient production, a failure to make adequate advances in the development and use of new production technology... restrictive labor practices, impediments to better management, a totally inadequate amount of research on the industry's problems and land speculation that inhibits the effective carrying forward of larger-scale housing developments in an efficient way."

Naturally, then, Canadians may watch with great interest the results of the United States' central effort to achieve a great advance in housing technology to bring down the price of homes. This is "Operation Breakthrough," a project conducted by U.S. Secretary of Housing and Urban Development George Romney. His department is looking for the most promising ideas from all sources for new building and financing techniques, and expects by mid-November to select those to be tested by actual construction.

One of the department's hopes is that some of the housing produced in this program will be so inexpensive and of such quality that municipalities will be induced to alter their building codes to accommodate the new techniques.

Success or failure, this experiment will be of consequence to the potential occupants of the 2,400,000 new housing units which the Economic Council says Canada will need in the 1970s as well as those of the 26,000,000 new units in the next decade which the U.S. Congress deems needed in that country—a remarkable parallel, incidentally, in relation to the populations.

"Hold it — that water's polluted!"

Solving Canadian Problems

Where Canadianism Is Needed

By HEWARD GRAFFTEY

DR. ARTHUR PORTER, the co-founder of Marshall McLuhan's Institute of Culture and Technology at the University of Toronto, was discussing problems faced by modern man and warned that we must be careful of what he terms "the cliché brigade."

He was speaking to Ontario Progressive Conservatives attending a conference at Queen's University, Kingston, and cautioned that it is dangerous to seek solutions which the cliché brigade imports from other countries, notably the United States.

His discussion of how misleading clichés, or hackneyed phrases, borrowed from another country can be, served to bring to mind a conversation I had with several friends in Montreal.

We were talking over coffee in a small cellar restaurant. Discussion centred around politics, and an elaborate train of thought was being developed when someone in the group interrupted. "We should stop importing American problems into Canada," she protested, claiming that to hear us talk one would think there was no border between the two countries.

Her cry, of course, is one which needs to be heard and heeded.

Importing ideas is both good and necessary; importing an analysis is not. Ideas from as many countries and cultures as possible are helpful to us because they fit the Canadian mosaic and strengthen it.

Importing analyses made in other countries, however, and thinking they will automatically be relevant to our situation, is folly. There is no reason why they should apply here.

For example, many people like pointing to Sweden's social structures and government policies, making the easy assumption that, since they seem good there, they should be good here.

The multitude of historical, cultural and social differences between Canada and Sweden are ignored or swept under the rug. Proponents of adapting parts of the Swedish system argue, persuasively, that we are a nation of borrowers. Our government, after all, is a strange amalgam of the British and American systems, and our culture is pieced together from the fragment of 100 countries.

When all is said and done, however, the fact remains that every time we lazily borrow an analysis which someone has made of a situation in his own country, and try to apply it here, the result is distortion. We see ourselves less and less as we really are.

Each summer on the shores of Lake Couchiching a group of academics and public figures gathers to discuss the towering issues of the day. The conference is sponsored by the Canadian Institute of Public Affairs.

I did not attend this year's Couchiching conference but was interested to read a letter from someone who did, and who said that, "This year, only literature published in the United States was made available, and much of it was free including the U.S. Information Service's glossy new quarterly, Dialogue."

Here it is! But will he have the grace to blush?

Revolt was the subject of the conference. According to Dorothea Teakles, formerly with the Institute of Canadian Studies at Carleton University, the participants "were blandly lead into discussions of the forms of revolt in the United States, and obviously expected to infer with the help of the professors (mostly American) and reading material (again American) that a similar situation exists here and that therefore there is really little difference between the two countries."

A similar dilemma exists in our university communities, where many students and professors alike, in search of a thesis topic, cast about for an analysis made south of the border or in Europe. Then, finding what they hope is a suitable framework, they merely fill it with Canadian examples.

The inarticulate major premise in all of this is that differences don't exist from one country to another.

It goes without saying that Marxists come to this approach more easily than most, since their "world view" leads them to believe that, at least on a theoretical level, a similar analysis will hold up from one country to the next. Yet even Marxists have been questioning that of late.

On a more practical level, I recall how dangerous this line of reasoning turned out to be in the struggle for safer automobiles. In the process of bringing this vital issue to public attention, there was of course an exchange of information between those working on auto safety in Canada and in the United States.

It soon became apparent, however, that our more severe winter climate presented a host of difficulties which nobody in the U.S. had any reason to think about. Canadians drove with dangerously reduced winter-time visibility until someone in this country recognized our unique needs and brought it to the attention of the auto industry that rear-window defrosting devices are a necessity.

In many ways, it is easy to see how non-Canadian we are becoming in our thinking. In no small part it is due to the cultural penetration of this country (as in most other countries in the world) by the United States.

We adopt what has already become a cliché in America: "If we can put a man on the moon we can solve our problems at home"—a phrase which springs from American enterprise and which applies to problems we often don't even have here.

Green Revolution

By ANTHONY S. LOBO from New Delhi

THE green revolution which began to flower in India less than two years ago is gathering momentum.

Agricultural experts now claim the rising production of food grains on this subcontinent, threatened with famine only a few years ago, is happily an irreversible process.

Despite the annual quota of floods in some areas and consequent destruction of some crops, the overall effect of this year's monsoon has been healthy. A normal rainfall has aided the farmer for two years in a row to maximize his crop yield with the aid of new techniques he has learned.

One has only to see the strong healthy stalks rising out of the water in miles and miles of green paddy fields to sense the vigor of the agricultural rebirth in this nation.

New seeds of the high-yield variety, better fertilizers, more efficient irrigation methods and a growing system of roads in the countryside — some 300,000 miles since independence — have made the difference.

The success of wheat production which began to show results nearly two years ago is now being matched by a rice revolution. Grains from Japan, Taiwan and the Philippines are being adapted to Indian conditions.

But at the heart of the revolution is the small farmer and the small laborer in the numerous experimental stations run by state governments.

The image of the Indian farmer is changing. His instinct for profit and higher prices which is emerging clearly shows he is coming alive. He is feeding the green revolution.

Behind him, of course, is the dedication of India's new agricultural technocrat. The case of one S. Madhav is symbolic of the rice revolution and its propagation at the grass roots level.

For ten years, Madhav, a skilled laborer at a rice research station in the state of Maharashtra, carefully watched the experiments of the scientists.

Madhav had little formal education and even less knowledge of English, but he absorbed the methodology of the experiments. The scientists at Shiragaoon were trying to develop new high-yield rice by mating local varieties with seeds from Taiwan and the Philippines.

Given permission from authorities, Madhav conducted experiments on his own and evolved four new strains of what agriculturists are now calling wonder rice. The results were Ratnagiri Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4 — all high-yield and disease-resistant. Two are early varieties which ripen in 90 days.

Madhav was promoted recently to the position of agricultural officer at the research station and has promised that two more varieties of the wonder rice will follow soon.

What Madhav and countless workers and small farmers like him have done besides growing more food is to provide more jobs for the millions of unemployed who flock to the cities during the last few years.

The expansion of agriculture is attracting these city-dwellers back to the farms. Here they either return to cultivation of crops or to the small industries which support the farm communities.

OTHER PAPERS WRITE . . .

There's a Catch

The Telegram, Toronto

THE Associated Credit Bureaus of Canada have announced they'll allow citizens to look at files that the organization holds and circulates on their credit records. If a customer wishes, he may add corrections or explanations to his file.

There's a catch, though. Before looking at his file, the individual will have to sign a waiver, relinquishing any right to sue the credit bureau or its information sources over incorrect information he might find in the file.

The public and the provincial governments of Canada should not be satisfied with this concession.

There's no reason why credit bureaus should be able to escape legal responsibility for the accuracy of the material they provide. Newspapers, magazines, radio and TV stations and all publishers accept such responsibility. There are parallels between publication of news information about a person and distribution of credit information about him.

Inaccuracies circulated by a credit bureau are capable of inflicting serious damage upon individuals or firms. Denial of credit can be fatal to a business venture.

An individual or firm might suffer damage and suspect an inaccurate or malicious credit file as the cause. Yet in order to ascertain whether this is the case, he would be compelled to waive first any right to compensation by the courts.

Computerized, instantly available credit information has become a new and important part of life. Control of it and safeguards for the subjects of credit files require a new kind of legislation and should not be left to voluntary concessions by the credit bureaus.

In Canada, the provincial governments appear to have jurisdiction in this field. Ontario could be well advised to lead the way with a new and comprehensive law detailing the rights of both the credit bureaus and their subjects in the collection of credit information, its accessibility, its use and its accuracy.

Access to his credit file for reasonable purposes should be guaranteed to the individual by law. The right to sue for recovery of damages resulting from incorrect and malicious credit information should be similarly defined. It would serve the dual purpose of providing compensation to the injured and as a powerful incentive to credit bureaus to make sure the information they circulate is accurate and fair.

The Moon's Distance

The Leader-Post, Regina

The exact distance between the earth and the moon has finally been ascertained. The moon is 232,271,361 miles from earth — about 130 feet, give or take a few either way, more distant than previous measurements had indicated.

This is the finding of a laser beam which scientists, after several unsuccessful tries, have finally succeeded in bouncing off the reflector left on the lunar surface by the Apollo 11 astronauts, Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin.

It seems strange, that the mission which proved the moon is not unreachable should also reveal that it is farther away than we had thought.

Pigeon Post

Winnipeg Free Press

The Russians have made some interesting discoveries about pigeons. They have found them very apt pupils. They can learn, it appears, to do things on assembly lines that are at present done by men. They can, for example, grade small articles in production and find the imperfect specimens far more accurately than men are able to do.

But in our immediate situation, one aspect of their inter-

The Spectator, Hamilton

EAST YORK'S legislation committee is considering licensing cats. The request, like a thousand others in various suburbs, came from a dog owner. East York has been fed the following rationale:

Dogs are licensed, therefore cats ought to be; cats yowl at nights; cats curl up in flowerbeds, sometimes bending the chrysanthemums. So cat-tag proponents reason. Licensing would end all this injustice, disruption of the peace and desecration of flora.

Well, we doubt if cat licences would make dogs feel any better. And licences haven't noticeably alleviated the motorcycle rackets (which drown out the nocturnal feline serenades in most neighborhoods). Nor will a collar and tag have much bearing on any cat's choice of a place to snooze in the sun.

You may festoon a cat in licences, regulations and political diatribe, as the eminent observer of men and beasts, Guy Gilpatrick, put it. "A leopard doesn't change his socks."

esting discoveries about pigeons what he says is documentary evidence that Trudeau's "stuff" is being written by Mackenzie King's speechwriter: a venerable retainer he inherited along with his East Block office.

Clearly the prime minister's writer has not reached the empathy with him that Hal Dornan had with Mr. Pearson; Jack Pickersgill had with Mr. St. Laurent or John Diefenbaker had with — well — with John Diefenbaker. But it still isn't vintage King; not yet, anyway.

In fact, historian Ramsay Cook, in an interesting and perceptive assessment of the prime minister (masked as a review of the first flood of Trudeau books), says in the Tamarack Review that the whole of the man is contained in his retort, "Le style c'est l'homme meme."

The trouble, Cook says, is that many thought he was talking about his leather coat.

The "Gospel" is confined mainly to these last years of his public ministry. Missing are some of his best lines. When someone at Kitchener suggested a romance between himself and the former Mrs. Kennedy, he replied: "This goes back to earlier questions about foreign domination."

It broke up the audience. Of his reading habits, Trudeau once said, "Occasionally if someone will give me a good pulp, a good pocket novel, I'll read it."

Here it is! But will he have the grace to blush?

Latest On Trudeau

The Ottawa Journal

The newest little coffee table ornament in Ottawa is "The Gospel According to Saint Pierre," the latest and perhaps the liveliest of the Trudeau books.

Who told a Mount Royal crowd, "There is no Santa Claus in politics," and five days later at Sherbrooke said, "Just like Santa Claus, I have come down from heaven at election time."

Our prime minister, that's who!

This and much of his fascinating and contradictory appeal is reinforced by similar quotations culled from his speeches and statements by CBC producer Brian Shaw.

It comes to hand this month along with Robert Fulford's delightful spoof of Mr. Trudeau's speeches in Saturday Night magazine.

He, too, has culled through the words and wit to assemble

Nixon Move Helps at Home, Not in Peace Talks

President Nixon's decision to withdraw another 35,000 troops from Vietnam probably will do him more good at home than at the Paris peace talks.

By STEWART HENSLEY from Washington

But there is no evidence it will induce North Vietnam and the Viet Cong to begin discussion of reasonable solutions in Southeast Asia. White House officials acknowledge that the president's principal problem is this: To somehow convince Hanoi that the communists are wrong in believing that if they just hang on long enough the United States eventually will withdraw all its forces and abandon the Saigon government.

However, they offer no specific suggestions as to just how Nixon is going to accomplish this.

Nixon's plan to bring out another 35,000 men by mid-December represented a compromise between what he had hoped to do and what the realities of the situation permitted him to do.

The president at one time had hoped to announce by the end of August a second withdrawal of 50,000 men during the autumn, with another large slice to be announced toward the end of the year.

However, Hanoi's refusal to demonstrate any "give" at Paris, added to uncertainty about communist military plans for the future, caused him to lower his sights.

There appeared to be two main reasons why the president made his announcement at this time:

- He was under increasing political pressure to make good on his promise to announce a second reduction.
- He and his advisers wanted to give the successors of the late Ho Chi Minh some inducement to modify Hanoi's previously intransigent position if they have any inclination to do so.

Nobody in the U.S. Government really knows whether there is any pressure within the Hanoi regime for negotiating a compromise settlement. Even if there is, it is believed it will be some time before it manifests itself.

Daughter Depicts 'Monster' Stalin

Nikita S. Khrushchev might have succeeded in freeing Russia from rule by terror if he had not reaped the enmity of communist party leaders by denouncing Stalin, after his death in 1953, according to Svetlana Alliluyeva, Stalin's defector daughter.

In her second book, Only One Year, scheduled for publication later this month, Mrs. Alliluyeva assesses the current Brezhnev-Kosygin leadership which replaced Khrushchev. She sees it as part of "the old despot tradition: That the nation remain mute, while the Kremlin alone spoke and made decisions."

She concedes that her father was a "moral and spiritual monster" without a shred of conscience, but she condemns his Kremlin associates, the epitome of "yes men" for collaborating with him in crime.

"By fearing to admit the party's guilt, and dumping all the blame on the terrible dead man, he (Khrushchev) had eloquently discredited not only himself but the entire party," she wrote. "For this the party could never forgive him." Khrushchev was forced out of power in 1964.

Mrs. Alliluyeva's book is the first ever written from inside the Kremlin clique and it is a chilling depiction of Stalin's corrupt lust for absolute, unshared power, the sumpuous and sterile lives of the top 10 politburo families, and the baseless arrests and executions from which not even Stalin's own in-laws were immune.

"My mother's sister Anna had gone mad in prison and had come home a sick woman," Mrs. Alliluyeva disclosed. "Yevgenia Alliluyeva, the widow of mother's brother, had signed all the accusations set before her: spying, poisoning her husband, contacts with foreigners."

"You sign anything there," she would say, "just to be left alone and not tortured! At night no one could sleep for the shrieks of agony in the cells. Victims screamed in an unearthly way, begging to be killed, better to be killed."

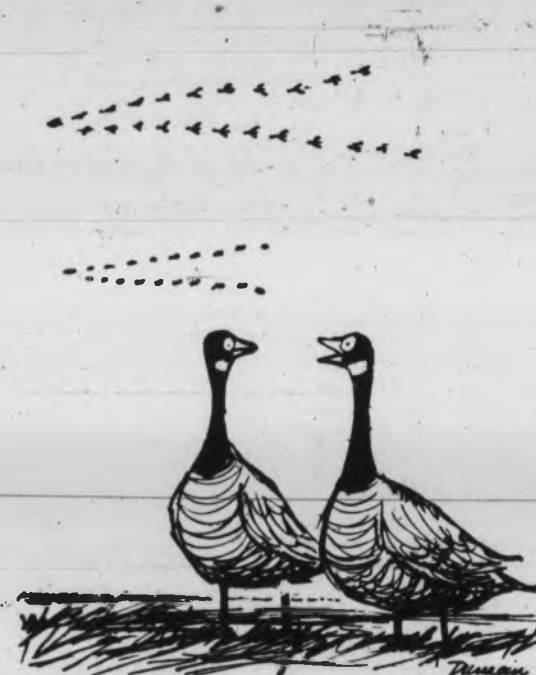

Stalin sent the two widows to prison — Aunt Yevgenia in solitary confinement for six years — because "they knew too much." One of the things they knew was that Mrs. Alliluyeva's mother had committed suicide because, at 31, she was "driven to despair" by disillusionment with her husband and by "the impossibility of changing anything."

Mrs. Alliluyeva did not find out that her mother's death was not a natural one until years later.

"Father was more shattered (by his wife's suicide) than anyone else," she wrote. "For he fully realized this was a challenge and a protest against him. I believe that my mother's death, which he had taken as a personal betrayal, deprived his soul of the last vestiges of a human warmth."

By FREDERICK M. WINSIP from New York

"I'm not going. Last year I was hijacked to Cuba."

"It's got to be the money," explained one worker at this strange new frontier on the rim of the world. "Why would anybody come to a place like this if it weren't for the money?"

Jerry Schmidt, a young petroleum engineer from Oklahoma, look at it a little more romantically.

"Maybe it's the adventure," he said, gazing thoughtfully at caribou munching contently on the tundra near the oil rig of an Atlantic Richfield Co. drilling site.

"I look at it as the future. Production in Oklahoma is going down, so I decided to come here. I guess I'm a roamer."

The drill site is known as Southeast Eileen, but there is no real flesh-and-blood Eileen around. No women, guns or booze are allowed on the north slope, a desolate land where the richest oil deposits in the United States have recently been discovered.

A heat wave hit the north slope recently. The temperature was 32 degrees as a two-engine jet airliner chartered by Atlantic Richfield touched down on the company's 5,500-foot gravel runway and taxied to a stop in a cloud of dust.

"Welcome to Prudhoe Bay," said a stewardess as about 20 oil field workers and four newsmen stepped down the ramp.

The flight began at Fairbanks, 400 miles south, where the airport is bustling with supply operations for the oil drilling at the north slope.

Luggage racks bulged with bulky quilted jackets and parkas. Soon Prudhoe Bay, near where Atlantic Richfield struck oil 18 months ago and started the stampede for positions on the slope, will be frozen solid.

During the greater part of the year, the paralyzing cold is the constant enemy. Lows of 50 below zero are common, the mercury sometimes drops to 70 below and punishing winds constantly buffet the area.

Last week, however, only a thin layer of snow covered the Brooks Range as the plane flew over jagged peaks leading to the slope.

The slope itself leading down from the mountain range to the Arctic Sea is so gradual that its rivers meander in great loops and swirls, unable to find a downhill path.

From the air, the slope this time of year looks like a midwestern prairie after two weeks of rain. Pools of water lie everywhere, glistening in the bright sunlight. Summer weather has melted the surface of the Arctic's frozen layer of earth that extends more than 1,000 feet deep.

Drill crews work 12-hour-a-day shifts, seven days a week, for 28 straight days, then fly south for two weeks off in Fairbanks or Anchorage.

Some even fly back to their homes in "the lower 48" for two weeks.

Two hundred men live and work at base camp, adjacent to the runway. They handle supply, transportation and construction for the six sites where Atlantic Richfield is drilling.

Men working at the drill sites live in camps adjacent to the rigs.

The camp living units are trailer-like modules, all heavily insulated, well-heated and interconnected. Food is excellent, and the pay is double, triple or even quadruple the usual scale in other fields. For example, a bulldozer operator can make nearly $40,000 a year on the slope, compared to about $12,000 elsewhere in the United States.

Recreation is limited, but that doesn't seem to matter. Explained one driller: "After 12 hours of wrestling with these pipes, all I want is a good meal and some rest." There is no radio or television, but movies are shown nightly in the recreation halls. Inevitably, there is also card playing.

A sign in the base camp card room sternly warns: "All poker to be played for pleasure, with no intent as an trailers to housing modules."

After Ho, What Comes Next?

By DENIS WARNER From Canberra

For months, and possibly for years, the active direction of affairs in North Vietnam had been in hands other than Ho Chi Minh's. Able technicians ran government, party, military and foreign affairs.

It is improbable that an outsider will be able to discern an early change of direction, or even of emphasis. Yet the death of Ho is a grievous blow to the North Vietnamese people who held him in high affection and to the nation's hopes and aspirations.

Looming rapidly ahead are not only the decisive challenge of establishing a new leadership, but crises in international relations and in the conduct of the war.

It is too easy to divide Ho's lieutenants into pro-Peking and pro-Moscow factions.

Le Duan, the party secretary, who has been named to head the committee arranging Ho's funeral, is usually regarded as a Moscow man. And Moscow has, of course, been urging peace by negotiation.

But the war in the south is almost Le Duan's personal war. He was the founder of the Viet Cong, and the architect of its tactics, and he has always had a vested interest in pushing the war through to a final victory. He is also a southerner.

Prime Minister Pham Van Dong, another man listed in the Moscow camp and a candidate for the leadership, knows that North Vietnam has to live with China.

And, finally, Truong Chinh, chairman of the standing committee of the National Assembly, is regarded as an out and out Peking man. He is committed to protracted war, but he was also the originator of the Tet offensive, which was decidedly a non-Maoist way of fighting revolutionary war.

General Giap, who has frequently been mentioned in recent days as a possible candidate, is not, and never has been, in the running.

Ho's genius at the centre of party and government affairs was his capacity to command absolute loyalty from often bitterly divided lieutenants. When a decision carried his imprimatur, it was accepted. None of the candidates for office share that gift. Ho could bridge the factionalism in the North, which, even in the party itself, used to be no different from the factionalism in the South.

Ho could also maintain the balance between Peking and Moscow. For years, he was Moscow's top man in the Far East, but he also undertook personally the translation of Mao Tse-tung's writings into Vietnamese.

His death comes at a time when Russian and Chinese relations have passed the point of no return. If it comes to war on the Siberian and Sinkiang borders, as it may, it is inconceivable that Peking will let the Soviet Union maintain the level of influence in Hanoi that its vast shipments of military equipment entitle it to.

Finally, in South Vietnam, Ho's name had a magic of its own. He was worth divisions of troops and millions of votes. But there is no affection left over for the rest of the Northern leadership.

Bonanza, Votes Created

A change in capital structure that will entitle holders of the A class shares of Burrard Dry Dock to receive the same dividend and voting rights as the holders of the B shares has been approved by the directors of the Vancouver-Victoria ship-building company.

A bonanza distribution of $5,000,000 of surplus funds in the form of a $5 a share stock dividend is involved. If the plan is approved, the A shareholders who accept conversion will be eligible for the special dividend.

The offer about to be made by the directors will allow A shareholders to convert into B shares on a share-for-share basis. They will also forego their privilege of having a cumulative dividend of 45 cents a share which does not go with the B shares.

On the other hand, the A class shareholders are limited to extra dividends of not more than 30 cents a year.

The shares of Burrard A stock rose $2 to $9 on the Toronto Stock Exchange when the news broke.

BACKED BY CPR

Canadian Pacific Railway is looking for between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 for railway capital use.

The company is planning to issue a collateral trust bond, non-redeemable for at least 15 years, and with the backing of CPR's perpetual consolidated 4 per cent debenture stock at the rate of $200 for each $100 of new bond.

Further details of the offer are not yet available.

NEW TAX SAND VENTURE

A second production consortium has been given the go-ahead by the Alberta Oil and Gas Conservation Board to proceed with plans to extract crude oil from the Athabasca tar sands.

Synchrude Canada, a company owned by Imperial Oil, Atlantic Richfield, Cities Service, Athabasca Inc. and Gulf Oil of Canada, has won approval for an 80,000 barrels-a-day plant that will go into production by 1976.

The estimated cost of $200,000,000 is about $70,000,000 less than the pioneer plant owned by Great Canadian Oil

Sands, which has been in spasmodic operation for the past two years.

Plagued by problems from the start, Great Canadian has been losing money heavily, but is now beginning to get things licked into shape.

Synchrude proposes to use a different extractive method, and experiences gained by Great Canadian may serve it in good stead.

Although the tar sands are believed to be the largest deposit of hydrocarbons in the world, the extractive difficulties are such that the oil companies have preferred the more conventional sources of supply.

The rich strike in Alaska has also done something to retard the hopes for the tar sands, but with Synchrude coming on the scene the future for the new community of Fort McMurray is said to be brighter than it has been for some time.

Synchrude will pour new capital into the area and perhaps start a development boom in the area that so far has failed to click.

INSURANCE PROBLEM

Insurance coverage for liability claims on the new jumbo jets is creating problems for the airlines as they await the first deliveries of the giant Boeing 747s.

Carrying up to 250 passengers, most airlines believe they will require insurance cover of $150,000,000 on each 747 flight.

The big jets now in service carry insurance of $110,000,000 for their capacity loads of up to 200 passengers. The insurance companies so far are not willing to go further on a single risk.

FIRST JUMBO

Pan-Am is to get its first jumbo in service in December, and will use it on international flights where the individual indemnity limit is $75,000 a passenger.

The total passenger liability on this plane could be about $70,000,000 but the liability does not end with the passengers carried. Damage and claims from another airline might be involved, as might damages on ground.

The U.S. airlines have an additional headache when they put the 747s on domestic routes where there is no insurance limit of liability, and the airlines or their insurers, are at the mercy of the courts.

The problem is delayed for Canadian lines. Air Canada is not scheduled to get its first jumbo until 1972.

Distant Dishes Rattled

Vegas where tall buildings on the strip shook for almost a minute. Window glass there has been broken frequently by explosions at the test site.

According to the Atomic Energy Commission, the blast was "very important to American security." Air Force Gen. E. B. Giller, assistant general manager for military applications at the AEC, said the test was not a continuation or extension of the 1.2 megaton "boxcar" test of April, 1968, the largest the United States has ever held.

Giller said Tuesday's test was for a "future military weapons system."

This led to speculation that the AEC had tested a "spectrum bomb" warhead for the Sentinel ABM system, believed to be in design. The warhead, it has been said, will give off high energy X-rays that would destroy with heat any nearby objects — presumably enemy missiles.

The underground explosion also was recorded on seismographs in New York, Berkeley, St. Louis and Reno, Nev.

The main shock wave was reported to have been felt at Salt Lake City, 350 miles away.

The explosion was not felt in the capitals at Carson City or Sacramento but one man on the 13th floor of a Sacramento building told an interviewer that building "danced a jig."

Yacht Holed, Sunk In Queen Charlottes

SKIDEGATE, B.C. (CP) — A $500,000 yacht, the 150-foot Norango, owned by Frank Griffith, president of Western Broadcasting Ltd., which owns CHEK-TV, has sunk in about 40 feet of water in nearby Alliford Bay.

The Norango was being docked at a transport department wharf Monday night when it was blown onto a reef and holed below the waterline. The five crew members took to lifeboats.

The yacht's steering gear failed as wind gusted to 60 m.p.h. in the Queen Charlotte Islands region.

Strike Talk at SFU

his "political activism" has cost him two teaching positions in eight months, said faculty members stand to lose more than students if they go on strike.

He said faculty members could be held liable for failing to teach, could be suspended by SFU — and could be kept off the campus by court injunctions granted to the university.

Prof. Leggett is one of 10 faculty members recommended for tenure by the department but turned down by the university.

NOW INTOLERABLE

Prof. Kathleen Aberle, another of the 10, said a strike will come "The fact is we cannot continue teaching . . . because the situation now is intolerable."

Robert Wyllie, a former head of the PSA department, said a strike is neither necessary nor sensible.

He said the faculty members and students should wait until the Canadian Association of University Teachers' Committee on academic freedom and tenure can consider the department's problems.

The meeting Tuesday opposed investigation of the department by an independent five-man committee, Dr. Kenneth Strand, SFU president, announced this plan Monday.

Dr. Strand has asked the CAUT and the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada to name the investigators.

The PSA general assembly voted not to co-operate with the investigation but said it will co-operate with an SFU student council investigation of all departments.

ALL STUDENTS

A meeting of all SFU students is set for Thursday, when Norm Wickstrom, student president, plans to present resolutions supporting the demands of the PSA department.

Among demands drawn up Tuesday are calls for reinstatement of Prof. Briemberg as department chairman, an end to the trusteeship and recognition of recommendations of the committee.

More Trouble for Hydro As Other Unions Bargain

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Hydro, already faced with the threat of a possible strike later this week by its 2,300 office workers, was involved Tuesday in direct negotiations with two other groups of its employees—electricians and gas workers.

The unions negotiating with hydro are the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 258, and the IBEW gas division, Local 213.

They are both negotiating for new contracts. The Hydro's 2,000 electrical employees have been without a contract since the old one expired last April 1 and the 450 gas workers have been without a contract since Aug. 21.

Ron Bone, president of Local 378 of the Office and Technical Employees Union, has said strike action would be considered if mediation office Clive McKee fails to work out an agreement. Mr. McKee has until today to bring down a report, unless his jurisdiction is extended.

The office workers voted 86 per cent in favor of a strike last Friday.

Neither management nor the unions have disclosed contract proposals.

Meanwhile, bargaining to avert a longshoremen's strike resumed Tuesday.

Both the B.C. Maritime Employers' Association and the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union have indicated there is room for negotiation.

Employers have offered the union a 70-cent hourly pay increase over three years. The present rate is $3.88.

A federal conciliation board recommended 70 cents over two years.

The union's 3,200 members employed in six B.C. ports seek a flat $51 a shift in return for changing the work rules so the harbor could be operated around-the-clock seven days a week.

In other labor developments in B.C. Tuesday, inside postal workers at the main Vancouver post office staged a 90-minute work stoppage protesting non-arrival of cheques covering overtime and night differential payments and striking oil workers continued presenting their case to a B.C. mediation commission investigating the dispute involving six major oil companies.

RED SMITH

When Wellington Mara said it was between 3 and 6 a.m. Friday that he decided to fire Allie Sherman, a thoughtful observer of the New York professional football scene was startled. "I thought," he said, "that only Joe Namath made decisions at that hour."

Allie got the word later in the morning. How did he take it? "I don't think he felt good," Mara said. "I think he felt like MacArthur when he was relieved of his command and told he had to go back to the Pentagon." Presumably, Wellington felt like Harry Truman.

Viewed as a period in history, the Sherman Era is a study in contrasts, and it is susceptible to varied interpretations. Allie succeeded Jim Lee Howell as head coach of the Giants after the 1966 season, and the team he inherited from Jim Lee Howell, the Eastern Conference of the National League in 1961, 1962, and 1963, losing twice to the Green Bay Packers and once to the Chicago Bears in playoffs for the league championship.

Right-hand man, Sherman told Wellington Mara that he had to have security or else. Wellington, newly installed in command of the family enterprise, was in a bind. Rather than face a showdown with a winning coach, he gave Allie a ten-year contract that still has five years to run. Presumably, Sherman will work it out in some capacity other than coach.

For Allie Sherman, security and adversity arrived together. In 1964 the Giants plunged from first to last place, winning two of 14 games. In 1965 they were worse, winning one of 14. In 1966, 1967, and 1968 they achieved a bovine mediocrity, winning seven and losing seven each year. It is possible, however, to describe Allie's record in more flattering terms, provided you regard a 7-7 season as a "winning year."

"If overall achievement is considered the criteria for measuring a pro coach's abilities," the Giants' 1969 roster says with a fine disregard for Greek grammar, "Allie Sherman must rank with the top mentors in the game... six winning years out of eight."

Obviously, it all depends on where you stand. If you're an employee of the Giants, it was six winning years out of eight. If you're a fan, it was three good years and five dismal ones. And in the meantime, the Jets came on to take charge, reducing the Old Guard to second-class citizenship in the town of the Old Guard to come. Was that horse-whipping by the Jets on Aug. 17 the straw that broke the camel's back?

"I don't think there was any straw," Wellington Mara said, "or any camel. I think we lost too many football games."

Mara denied that there was any connection between the players' meeting following Thursday night's defeat by the Pittsburgh Steelers and his decision to change coaches. Maybe there wasn't, but the meeting and the decision had the same cause. The players met because they felt that after five defeats in five exhibition games it was time to do something. For the same reason, Mara did something.

Will the team get better results with Alex Webster in charge? Probably not right away, but in the long run the change may prove beneficial. The opinion here, not recently arrived at, is that Allie Sherman's grasp of football techniques is as firm as anybody's and his understanding of human relationships sorely deficient.

To put it in other words, he understands football but not people. He suffers from a basic suspicion of independent thinkers. He surrounds himself with yes men, and he is quick to assign players to the doghouse for reasons that are frequently obscure. Tucker Frederickson is only the most recent in a long line of tenants in Allie's kennel.

It is hoped and believed that Alex Webster will not be handicapped by similar psychological difficulties. Big Red is a solid, steady-going sort who was a bona fide star with the Giants in their winning years, stayed close to the game as a radio commentator after his retirement as a player, and had two years as backfield coach before this chance came to move up.

Unfortunately, he has a name that fits comfortably into the lyric which has been No. 1 on the hit parade at Yankee Stadium these years. "Goodbye, Alex" scans just as neatly as "Goodbye, Allie." Too bad Webster wasn't christened Montmorency or Agamemnon.

However, there is confidence here that the choriosters will fall silent, for a time at least. Even if Alex Webster's Giants lose as consistently as Allie Sherman's Giants have done, the new coach won't catch all the blame. The fans will reason that he inherited somebody else's mess and they will be patient.

West Germans Stage Partial Meet Boycott

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — 30 yards over Leonida Nadezhda Chizhova of Russia Caraniosloglu of Romania. West German athletes here won the first gold medal of the trouble-plagued European track and field championships Tuesday night on a partial boycott of the day by shattering the world record in the women's shot put with a heave of 67 feet 4 inches. Lions to Start Orange Bowl Star Tonight

VANCOUVER (CP) — Coach Jim Thompson is turning to a rookie halfback from the University of Kansas in hopes of lighting a victory spark in his British Columbia Lions when they meet Edmonton Eskimos tonight in a key game between the tail-end clubs of the Western Football Conference.

Dennis Shanklin, five-foot-nine and 180 pounds, is expected to start in place of Leroy Sledge or Charlie Brown, who is bothered with a slight leg injury.

Shanklin, voted the outstanding player in the Orange Bowl game last season, has impressed Thompson in practice with his ability to hit into a hole and drive for extra yardage.

"It looks like he can go all the way for you," said Thompson. "He's faster with the ball than Brown."

Brown, who in two games with the Lions gained 101 yards in 20 carries, has outstanding speed but prefers to finesse his way around tacklers instead of driving through them.

At the University of Kansas

last year, Shanklin beat out bigger backs because of his hard running.

Both the Lions and Eskimos badly need a win in tonight's contest if they are to have much hope of overhauling Winnipeg Blue Bombers for the third and last playoff spot.

With the clubs moving into the second half of their 16-game schedule, the western conference has turned into a race between Saskatchewan Roughriders and Calgary Stampeders for first place. Winnipeg is third, with five points from two wins and a tie in nine games, followed by Edmonton with four points in eight games and Lions bringing up the rear with one victory in eight starts.

The Lions meet the Eskimos three times during the second half of the schedule and meet

Winnipeg twice. The Eskimos, who have already defeated Winnipeg twice in three meetings are finished with the Bombers in regular-season play.

Champion feels the Lions will have a good chance at a playoff spot provided they can win at least two of the three games against Edmonton and two more against Winnipeg.

Coach Neil Armstrong of Edmonton is equally confident his Eskimos can make the playoffs by whipping the Lions three straight.

Nanaimo Within Win Of Canadian Crown

MONTREAL (CP) — Nanaimo Luckies capitalized on a series of costly third-period infractions by Coughlin's Indians Tuesday to defeat the Quebec team, 20-15, and take a 3-4 lead in their best-of-seven Canadian Senior Lacrosse championship final.

The clubs meet again tonight in the suburban Chateaugay arena. Luckies won the first two matches by scores of 13-12 and 20-15 in games in which the hapless Indians piled up penalties in the final periods.

Bill Russell paced the Luckies with five goals and Don Stephenson scored three.

Charlie Hardy, Tom Blackburn, Bill Thomson and Ron Mathias each added two goals. Walter Goodfellow led the Coughlin's attack with three goals. Joe Curlette, Lewis Delisle, Lawrence Martin and Irvin Goodfellow scored two.

Four of the Indians' 11 penalties came in the third period, including a misconduct by Claude Ferrault at 17:18.

Nanaimo had six penalties. Luckies held a slim margin for most of the game, leading, 6-5, after the first period and 12-11 after the second. They outshot the Indians, 64-51.

Speaking Briefly

Big M May Need Surgery

PORT HURON, Mich. (CP) — Left winger Frank Mahovlich of Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League returned to training camp here Tuesday after doctors were unable to determine the nature of a "floating body" found in his left knee. A Red Wings official said Mahovlich, hockey's Big M, will resume training today and a decision will be made later on whether the knee will require surgery.

General manager Sid Abel said an operation is possible because doctors won't know the nature of the injury unless they open the knee.

BOBBY THOMPSON, a former Montreal Alouette, has been sold to New Orleans Saints and defensive end John Baker waived as Detroit Lions cut to the 40-man limit for this weekend's opening game... Offense end Al Rankin has been called up by Saskatchewan Roughriders to fill the spot of Lance Fletcher who suffered a dislocated elbow in Sunday's game against Hamilton...

KEN HODGE will be lost to Boston Bruins for four to six weeks after undergoing an emergency appendectomy during the club's training camp at

Vikings Bow

Oxford, England (Reuters)—Oxford University Greyhounds defeated the Vikings rugby team from the University of Victoria, 11-6, Tuesday. The match was the last of a six-game tour of Britain by the Canadians.

Vikings won two and lost four matches. Al Foster and Dave Leonard scored tries for the Vikings.

Two-Game Lead

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Peterborough Lakers edged Toronto Maple Leafs, 6-7, Tuesday to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven Eastern Lacrosse Association final.

Giants Climb to First Place As Marichal Baffles Braves

Right-hander Juan Marichal continued his Candlestick Park mastery Tuesday night baffling Atlanta Braves on four hits and pitching San Francisco Giants into first place in the National League's West Division with a 2-0 victory.

Marichal, with 19 wins in 29 decisions, boosted his home-park record to 13-1 with his eight shutout of the season, tops in the league. He has allowed only one run in his last 45 innings at home.

The win gave Giants a one-half game lead over the Braves. Successive singles by Ken Henderson, Jack Hiatt and Hall Lanier produced the first run in the second inning while a single by Tito Fuentes and Willie Mays' double scored the other in the fifth.

Los Angeles Dodgers moved into second place, one percentage point ahead of Atlanta, by sweeping a doubleheader from Cincinnati.

Dodgers rallied for two runs in the bottom of the ninth to win the opener, 2-1, and then got a run in the 12th inning on a bases-loaded single by Wes Parker to win the nightcap, 3-2. Houston Astros fell farther off the pace when they were beaten, 5-1, by San Diego Padres who started five rookies. Nate Colbert clouted his 22nd home run in the fifth.

of the season to spark a five-run first-inning rally. In the east, New York Mets were finally stopped — not by rivals but by rain.

While Mets' game against St. Louis was washed out, second-place Chicago Cubs picked up half-a-game by edging Montreal Expos, 5-4. Home runs by veteran Billy Williams, his 18th, and 19-year-old Oscar Gamble, his first as a major leaguer, were the big blows.

In the American League, Minnesota Twins moved closer to clinching the pennant in the

erred in the league home run lead.

Killebrew slammed his 44th homer of the season with two mates aboard and the Twins went on to defeat Oakland Athletics, 11-3, as Jim Perry picked his 19th win.

Killebrew was six-for-six with four homers and 12 runs batted in in the last three games against Oakland before a sixth-inning strikeout. In 18 games ahead of Oakland and reduced their magic number to six. Any combination of Minnesota victories and Oakland losses to talking six puts Twins in the playoff.

Baltimore's Dave McNally, batting .071 with six hits for the season, sent Washington's Frank Howard to the fence to catch his line drive in the second inning, doubled in the fifth and drove in the only run of the game with a bloop single in the sixth as Orioles shaded the Senators. It was McNally's 15th win.

Orioles have already clinched the eastern division title.

Registration Date Will Be Enforced

COURTENAY — The final date of acceptance of player registration forms, was the prime topic of discussion when directors of the Vancouver Island Amateur Basketball Association met here on the weekend.

Directors agreed that the final date for registration, Dec. 15, will be rigidly enforced. Island registrar Mrs. R. McKellar will not accept forms date stamped later than midnight of that date.

A lengthy proposal for play-off and tournament play, covering several problems which have arisen in past playing seasons was presented by the president, Cedric Trueman. Directors agreed in principle and the proposals will be put before play-off meeting to be held in Nanaimo on Dec. 7.

Several proposals for consideration by the BCABA meeting in Vancouver in mid-October won directorate approval and will be put to the B.C. body by Trueman.

No change in registration form costs was made but the matter is dependent upon costs charged by the B.C. body to the island group.

HARRY YOUNG

Although 95 per cent of all golf is at match play, there's hardly a big event left that is not decided on medal play.

It is a modern anomaly and one is afraid the lure of television fees must be held mainly responsible for the exit of the man-to-man conflict that attracts the great majority of golfers.

Fortunately, so far very few Canadian clubs have switched their own club championships from match to medal, although almost all of them compromise with qualifying rounds.

In the Victoria area, all championships at the club level are match play and unlike the all-prevailing medal competitions, match play procedure is bringing speculation, surprise and excitement which the card-and-pencil game so notably lacks.

Last weekend I would suppose the big surprise was at Gorge Vale where the reigning champion, and one of the best players in the district, Al MacLeod was beaten 3-and-2 by George Moon, a diligent, hard-working handicap golfer. A great day for George, and one he will long remember.

Also at Gorge Vale the true excitement of match play was in evidence in the match between Dave Mick and Gordon Jones.

Dave who has made himself one of Canada's best juniors of the year — he finished fourth in the national championship at Kelowna — found himself five down at the turn to the husky, long-hitting Victoria fireman.

But Mick kept plodding and Jones' game began to crumble as the junior whittled away at his lead. So much so that Mick won nine holes before winning two up on the 18th.

Having surmounted this hurdle, Mick must now be regarded as one of the favorites for the Gorge Vale title, along with Mike Kolb, a former champion, and Lex Sutcliffe.

At the Victoria Golf Club four past champions — Doug Munro, Barry Flavell, Jim Barry and Bill McColl — made their ways safely into the second round, but here again it may be a competition for youth.

Favorite at the moment is Carl Schwantje, who also played well at Kelowna, and who led the qualifiers in the club championship.

Schwantje became the club's junior champion a week ago carding a two-under-par 67 which gave him an 11 stroke bulge over his nearest rival, David Meares.

This week Schwantje goes against former-champion Jim Barry.

One of the notable, and unusual absentees from the Victoria Club championships is record holding winner George Bigelow.

But George isn't frightened of Schwantje or any of the other club hot shots. He simply by-passed the event because he is to represent Canada in the four-man team contest for the World Senior Golf International Championship at St. Andrews, Scotland, and it would have been impossible for him to compete in the later rounds if he made it that far.

The juniors are also doing well at Uplands where one of them is certain of a place in the final.

This honor will go to the winner of the semi-final this weekend between Keith Burrell and Ian Anderson. Keith and Ian both played well at Kelowna, and are members of the talented Victoria junior team.

The other Uplands semi-final is between schoolmaster Bob Hunt and Al Brown, who as one of the club's intermediates is another representative of youth. Hunt is the only former champion left.

It is the same at Royal Colwood where Laurie Kerr, last year's winner, holds that distinction. At the Langford course, the championship flight has been extended from 16 to 32 qualifiers, so that a long grind lies ahead of the eventual winner.

Others to win their first-round matches were the Ron Howards, junior and senior, and the old hockey ace, Joe Evans.

Here's a local club championship already concluded. Frank Dutton is the new champion at Ardmore Golf Club. He beat Walter Price 5-and-4 in the final.

A hole-in-one by Vic Painter on the sixth hole at Broome Hill Golf Club helped him to take the low gross trophy of the annual Britannia Branch No. 7 Legion tournament. Low net winner was M. Ellis. T. Clements was low among the senior golfers and J. Irving was top left-hander.

Saturday's big event locally is the "burning of the mortgage" by the Gorge Vale Golf Club. The arson commences at 8 p.m. but before that the club holds a field day followed by a smorgasbord. A dance will round off the big happy day for the Craigflower club.

Nicklaus impresses British fans

Nicklaus Hot for Nine In Ryder Cup Practice

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) —

Jack Nicklaus shot six-under-par on the homeward nine Tuesday and served notice that he was in form for the start of the 18th Ryder Cup golf match between top pros from the United States and Britain. The match-play competition starts Thursday.

Nicklaus finished his practice round over Royal Birkdale's 7,140 yards with a two-under-par 72 after playing the front nine in 40, four over.

STAND WELL BACK
The non-playing captain of the U.S. team, Sam Snead, said Nicklaus' driver "got to work on the back nine and, once Jack starts driving well, then everyone had better stand back."

Britain's non-playing captain, Eric Brown, said: "I reckon we've got the team to beat them despite their depth."

Brown's optimism is not shared by the bookies who rate the Americans 5-to-1 favorites.

"It's going to be a lot closer than many think," said Snead. "Some of our boys have never played match play."

"But they are adjusting and my problem is going to be to know whom to leave out."

The pairings for the four-somes—golfers playing alternate shots—will be announced today. There will be four four-somes Thursday morning and four in the afternoon.

The same pattern applies Friday and on Saturday the real crunch comes with 16 singles—eight in the morning and eight in the afternoon.

Surrey 212 and 202 for 2; Glamorgan 321 for 3 declared. A draw.

NHL Door Open for Officials If They Come One at a Time

United Press International

Seven linesmen and 13 referees worked out in a suburban Toronto Hockey rink Tuesday. Professional hockey's other three linesmen and 16 referees trained at the National Hockey League's official conditioning camp at Brantford.

Judging from the statements of NHL president Clarence Campbell, rebel Officials' Association representative Joe Kane and chief referee Scotty Morrison, things may stay that way for quite a while.

WANT RECOGNITION
The 20 officials working out at Lambton Park Arena in Toronto walked out of the NHL camp on Monday, less than 24 hours after they reported they were demanding the NHL recognize the newly formed Officials' Association as their bargaining agent in dealings with the league, with Kane as their legal representative.

Morrison and Campbell flatly refused to deal with the association. "We have no intention of negotiating with the association," said Campbell Tuesday. Morrison used the same words, "no intention," in a separate interview.

RIGHT TO ORGANIZE
"We are fighting for recognition," said Kane, a Toronto attorney. "We haven't even discussed salary or pension or matters like that since we haven't even been recognized by the league. The fellows walked out for recognition of their right to form an association."

The rebels included the NHL's senior referee Vern Bufiley, and most were veterans with the league. However, Kane said he was already getting calls from amateur officials assuring him of their support for the pro refs and linesmen.

BADLY MISLED?
Campbell asserted the Officials' Association supporters "have been misled very badly."

"We are against the idea of our referees unionizing. But there's no urgency in the matter—after all, we have 25 days before the start of the schedule."

"I don't think we would have trouble finding people who want to referee in the NHL," he added. The league president said the officials' duties required they be "completely and utterly independent."

"There is some need for uniformity among the players but it's an entirely different matter with the officials," he said.

"I am ready to meet with any individual who wants to talk things over. My door is always open," Morrison said.

In the meantime, he said he was making up a tentative schedule of officials for the pre-season schedule. He said he had enough men to handle the exhibition games, but he would need 17 referees and 10 linesmen for the regular season.

"The part that really hurts me," said Morrison, "is that I know for 10 or 12 of the guys who walked out it was the last thing in the world they wanted to do. These are a dedicated bunch of guys. Some of the younger ones had tears in their eyes as they packed up and got into the cars. I hope they come back."

at Island

We have a large and growing fleet, including the biggest towing and salvage ship in the Pacific... but we are barge-shaped and scow-shaped as well. Valuable information to keep in mind.

Our barges and scows come in all shapes and sizes, specially-designed for virtually every type of cargo moving up and down the Pacific Coast.

We have:

Tanker barges, chemical barges, self-loading self-dumping log barges, giant bulk cargo barges, rail car barges (we route rail cars into British Columbia's northern interior — and out of the north to any destination in the U.S.)

We have:

Covered general cargo barges, pulp barges, chip scows, bulk cargo scows, and the latest thing in shallow-draft ramp scows — capable of off-loading directly onto isolated beaches.

If you think we can't handle your cargo, call us anyway.

We build to accommodate the situation. Now or in the future Island's tug-barge combinations will shape up to your satisfaction.

ISTANBUL (AP) — A Turkish airliner carrying 57 passengers on a domestic flight was hijacked to Bulgaria Tuesday by a lone gunman. The plane and passengers, minus the hijacker, returned to Istanbul Tuesday night.

The Turkish Airlines Viscount turboprop remained in the Bulgarian capital of Sofia for about two hours before flying back to Istanbul.

A 77-year-old Istanbul law school student, identified by Istanbul police as the hijacker, stayed in Sofia.

Police Chief Muzaff Zaghar said the student, Sadik Tokar, apparently hijacked the plane to protest the Turkish government's restriction on foreign travel. He said Tokar had a history of "nervous troubles."

Turkey strictly limits the amount of money citizens can take out of the country, making it virtually impossible to make more than one or two trips abroad a year.

An official of the Sofia airport, reached by telephone from Vienna, said the passengers were given breakfast and shelter before their return flight.

Istanbul police said the hijacker was being detained by the Bulgarians.

MONTREAL (CP) — Special detection equipment is being installed at all major United States airports to put the electronic finger on would-be hijackers or other armed persons. It was learned Tuesday.

The equipment was demonstrated recently by the U.S. Federal Aviation Administration to civil aviation authorities at a closed-door meeting at International Civil Aviation Organization headquarters here.

Details of the equipment have been made available only to senior police officials, government authorities and aviation personnel, but it is known to include a magnetometer to detect concealed weapons.

In tests carried out at U.S. airports, the system picked out a number of "plants"—aviation officials carrying revolvers, pistols, hand grenades and explosives—from hundreds of thousands of airline passengers without delaying landing procedures.

The success of the tests led to a decision by the FAA to install the equipment at all major airports.

Indian Groups Getting Help

OTTAWA (CP) — Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien announced Tuesday that the federal government will give operation and organization grants to national and provincial Indian associations.

The announcement said total disbursement could be $300,000 this year.

It added that Indian band councils will receive funds to enable them to provide support for the national and provincial groups over the next few years.

Provincial associations are to receive grants representing $1 for every member. A grant representing 25 cents for each registered Indian in Canada goes to the National Indian Brotherhood.

"This year these start-up funds will be sent directly to associations that have not already received funds for similar purposes from other federal departments or agencies," the announcement said.

"An advance on the grants is to be paid immediately, with the balance to be paid on receipt of reasonable assurances that the particular associations have the requisite support."

Chretien said future payments will be made to band councils "to ensure that associations are completely free from government interference."

"We want them to take a full and independent role in the consultations which will be taking place. Support for the associations should come through the bands and not directly from the government."

Future support for the National Indian Brotherhood will depend only on them being supported in turn by the provincial associations. In this way we ensure that all the Indian associations are independent."

'B.C. Would Leave'

Premier Bennett says B.C. would pull out of Confederation if Canada became a republic. The premier was commenting on a statement by federal State Secretary Gerard Pelletier forecasting that Canada could become a republic within two generations.

Mr. Bennett said he could not see that happening, "and I would think they would lose British Columbia if that comes about. We want to stay in one united Canada."

Mr. Bennett said he was amazed that a federal minister, outside of Canada, would make such a statement.

Insurance Lead Vowed

VANCOUVER (CP)—Conway Parrott, president of the British Columbia Automobile Association, said Monday the 176,000-member association will have its own insurance business by Jan. 1.

meeting, means "insurance in the long run will be less expensive because we are a non-profit organization and we appeal to a better than average motorist."

Mr. Parrott said the step, approved Monday by a majority of members at a Vancouver insurance industry, he said, "In offering this insurance we also hope we will increase our membership."

The new service will be known as the B.C. Motor Insurance Co. and will operate under an act of the legislation adopted in 1964. BCAA previously acted as an insurance agency for Employers' Mutual Casualty Co.

Staff, Production Cuts Near

Film Board Sticks to Budget

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Film Board plans to cut staff and production by about 10 per cent in the next few weeks.

"We have to cut staff and production," NFB Chairman Hugo McPherson said Tuesday, "in order to meet the cost of living on a recently frozen budget. The freeze extends to March, 1971, and was imposed by Parliament."

McPherson said the reduction may not be as high as 10 per cent but it is hard to tell at the moment exactly what it will be.

Stanfield Wants Overhaul of Welfare

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield Tuesday night called for an overhaul of Canada's welfare system so the money will go where it is needed and provide incentives for those on relief.

Stanfield said the welfare system must be revised so programs encourage continued dependence on welfare rather than providing incentives to initiative," he said in a speech to the Progressive Conservative Association of Kent-Essex and Lambton-Kent.

every Canadian will have a decent standard of living. Welfare funds should not be given to people who do not need them; and there must be incentives built into the system to "encourage a man to get out and work as soon and as much as possible."

It would involve an extensive program of retraining. "But it would also involve a scheme to make it profitable for men on welfare to work."

The Conservative leader said there is also a great need for tax reform in Canada. There must be better ways to raise money than exacting it from the poor, "thereby helping to ensure their continued dependence on public assistance."

Law's Letter 'Blocks' Restoration

By NANCY BROWN

Esquimalt council would rather hide behind the letter of its bylaws than make any effort to help preserve its own history, architect Peter Cotton said Tuesday.

Mr. Cotton was angered by council's refusal Monday to amend its zoning bylaw on apartments to cover conversions.

"I simply asked council to do what it should have done in the first place — to make a ruling in the bylaw to cover conversions. Instead it chose to hide behind the letter of a zoning bylaw which obviously refers to inspect the house. I had provided for four suites, but they told me I would have to live in a magnificent open stairwell if I wanted to convert it into a suite.

"I planned instead for three suites downstairs with fewer than five suites would have to have a minimum area of 700 square feet."

Mr. Cotton said the bylaw also provided that 500 square feet suites could be built if there were more than five apartments, and also allowed for another apartment block. "I drew up plans, and he

"I could have ruined the atmosphere and quality of that old house and put in eight smaller suites, if I'd wanted to, but since I wanted to preserve it I'd only planned for three — one of 800 square feet, one 650 square feet and one 450 square feet."

He said the house, in "mint" condition, had hardwood floors and unpainted cedar dado, above which the walls were of green burlap with stencilled tulips.

The big open stairwell had a large landing at the top and a gallery running around.

"I felt the income from the three suites would give me enough to keep the place in the condition such a house should be, as well as giving living accommodation to three families."

Mr. Cotton said according to the bylaws in Esquimalt he could have opened the place as a rooming house for hippies, or mutilated the whole building by putting in eight suites, with impunity.

Blood Total Halfway

The Red Cross has reported a "very successful" monthly blood clinic this week, with 303 pints received during the two-day taping — 118 Monday and 185 Tuesday. This was midway between the maximum objective of 400 and the minimum of 200, an official said. Next clinic will be Oct. 20 and 21.

Frosh Urged To Speak Out

University of Victoria president Dr. Bruce Partridge urged freshmen students Tuesday to do something about it when they see things they think need changing.

And he cautioned them to accept it when their proposals for change are rejected.

"When your view is not accepted there may have been a very democratic process by which your view was not accepted," he said.

Dr. Partridge spoke before approximately 250 of this year's 2,000-member freshmen class. It was part of UVic's 1969 freshman orientation week.

The president said he had faith in the democratic process at the university.

He added that students in Canadian universities have more power than anywhere else in the world.

Riot Principal Out on Bail In Montreal

For Now

Squat-Ins Stay In Manor

LONDON (AP) — Three hundred teenagers who moved into a deserted Georgian manor near Buckingham Palace Sunday will be allowed to stay until a court order demanding their eviction is issued.

"And that," said a 19-year-old squatter named Hilary, "will take at least five weeks."

Police, owners and the real estate agency involved were reluctant to use force to clear out the 100-room mansion next to the former home of King George VI on the edge of Hyde Park.

RED CLOAK

"If the fuzz try to throw us out by force," said a young man in a shabby red cloak, "we will fight."

The squatters are members of the "London street commune" which seized the building to provide "lodging for homeless families."

Most of them, in hippie garb, seemed to be at home in the luxurious manor with its ornate ceiling and huge spiral staircase.

Court Parade

Boy, 15 Admits Thefts

A 15-year-old Victoria boy appeared Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court and pleaded guilty to three charges of breaking, entering and theft, three charges of theft under $50, two charges of theft over $50 and one charge of escaping lawful custody.

The youth who has been transferred to adult court from the family court as a result of his extensive record was remanded until Friday for sentence and pre-sentence report.

Einar Rodstrom, 36, of 490 Ched, as fined $50 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving.

Peter C. J. Meissner, 18, of 1419 Stanley, was remanded until Friday for sentence and pre-sentence report after pleading guilty to a charge of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

Court was told the accused had sexual intercourse with a 15-year-old girl on several occasions.

Dean B. Smith, 20, of 601 Raynor, was fined $25 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of being a minor in possession of liquor.

MONTREAL (CP) — Militant separatist Reggie Chartrand was released Tuesday on $10,000 bail after pleading not guilty to charges arising from a school language riot last week in suburban St. Leonard.

Chartrand appeared in court voluntarily hours after a warrant was issued for his arrest. He was arraigned on three charges—participating in a riot, obstructing police and failing to disperse after reading of the Riot Act.

The latter charge carries a maximum penalty of life imprisonment while the other two are punishable by a maximum of two years each.

Preliminary hearing was set for Sept. 23.

FORMER BOXER

Chartrand, a former boxer and leader of the black-shirted Chevaliers de l'Indépendance—Knights of Independence—was originally scheduled to appear in court Monday to answer a summons.

The warrant was issued Tuesday when he failed to appear for the second time.

Another 38 persons including Raymond Lemieux, leader of the Ligue pour l'Integration Scolaire which wants Quebec school children taught in French only, have been arraigned on various charges arising from the demonstration in favor of French-only schools in suburban St. Leonard.

ONE PER YEAR

The Roman Catholic school board of St. Leonard has eliminated English-language teaching in Grades 2 and 3 and plans to continue eliminating a grade a year until all elementary school classes are taught in French.

The St. Leonard Parents Association, representing families that want their children taught in English, has accepted an offer of classroom space for the 350 children affected from the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal.

OTHER OFFER

In another development Tuesday, the Le Royer regional school board suggested to the government that it, not the Montreal Protestant board, should handle schooling of the English-language Grade 1 and 2 pupils from St. Leonard.

Guy Durocher, chairman of the Le Royer Board which has jurisdiction over St. Leonard schools, said Tuesday he plans to meet Therese Baron, assistant deputy minister of education, to discuss the proposal.

Under his plan, temporary schooling would last until the government passes legislation to recognize Montreal school boards along language lines instead of the present religious line. Durocher said his belief in freedom of linguistic choice, coupled with sympathy for "uninformed" immigrants who attach great importance to religious training, prompted the offer.

AFTER HOURS

The Protestant plan, starting Monday, does not include religious classes for the St. Leonard pupils, most of them children of Italian origin. It was hoped the Catholic school board would provide teachers for after-hours religious instruction.

However, in a letter to the St. Leonard Parents Association, the Montreal Catholic School Commission said it would not help the children affected by St. Leonard's decision to eliminate English-language education.

It said this would be intruding on the jurisdiction of another board.

Kidnapping Just Prank Not Judge's View

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — Provincial Judge Harry Jermyn Tuesday ignored a suggestion that the kidnapping of Mary Nelles was "a prank that got out of hand" and set bail of $50,000 each for six young Toronto men charged with the crime.

"These are serious charges and can affect the welfare of almost anyone in this country," said the judge.

He said the $50,000 cash or property bail requested by Crown Attorney Bruce Affleck of Ontario County "was not out of line."

The judge remanded the six men, all bachelors and smartly-attired, until Sept. 23. They will have a chance at that time to reapply for lower bail.

The six are:

Nelles

Gary Adams, 26, former boyfriend of Mrs. Nelles, Ralph Cameron, 25, Michael White-side, 24, John Rogan, 26, Peter Burns, 23, and Constable Richard Yeowart, 26, a member of the Metropolitan Toronto police department since 1963.

The suggestion that the kidnapping of Mrs. Nelles Sept. 7 was "a prank that got out of hand" was made by Rogan's counsel, James Shuttleworth. He said Rogan had spent two years at Carleton University in Ottawa, has no criminal record and a good employment record.

Yeowart's lawyer Robert Hopkins, said the police constable's 63-year-old father was willing to put up his entire life savings—$3,000—as bail.

He said the $50,000 bail was ridiculous and it would take "10 fathers working a lifetime to raise."

A crowd of about 200 jammed into the courtroom, in the town 25 miles east of Toronto.

Mrs. Nelles, 26, was kidnapped from her rural home in nearby Claremont. She was returned safely Sept. 8 after her husband, Cliff, 29, paid $200,000 ransom.

The six men were arrested in Toronto last Friday and Saturday. The $200,000 ransom was recovered Friday near a cottage at Foxes Bay, 110 miles north of Toronto.

The six were driven from Whitby jail to the municipal building in a provincial police wagon. They were handcuffed in pairs and several policemen rode with them.

The six were hastily escorted into the building and up some stairs into the courtroom. They wrapped their suit jackets around their heads to shield their faces from photographers' cameras.

The six answered questions politely in court when the judge asked if they had lawyers and identified themselves as their names were called.

Mutilated Money Prison Term Judged Correct

VANCOUVER (CP) — The final chapter in the 1965 $1,200,000 mutilated money robbery was written here Tuesday when the B.C. Appeal Court rejected an appeal by former Vancouver policeman David Louis Harrison against a 15-year prison term.

In a judgment written by Mr. Justice C. W. Tysoe, the appeal court said the lower court made no error in sentencing Harrison to 15 years in prison for his part in the robbery of the Canadian Pacific merchandise services terminal in Vancouver.

On Feb. 11, 1965, four men fled in a stolen car after holding up the terminal with three packing cases containing $1,200,000 in mutilated money destined for destruction by the Bank of Canada. In accordance with standard procedure for destruction of money, holes had been punched in the bills in the packing cases. The money was recovered later.

Mr. Justice Tysoe said the robbery was well planned and that Harrison and his accomplices were armed.

He noted it was the second robbery conviction against Harrison, who was convicted of taking part in a $100,000 holdup in Burnaby in December, 1962.

Harrison, now 36, appealed on the grounds that the sentence was excessive and that nobody was injured during the holdup.

Harrison, who conducted his own appeal, said no breach of trust was involved because he had resigned from the Vancouver police force in September, 1962, long before the holdup.

Marine Centre Might Land Here

By BILL STAYDAL

Victoria and Vancouver are prime sites for a major marine sciences centre which will be recommended soon to the Science Council of Canada by three of its researchers.

The men who will make the recommendation are in Victoria today to hear the views of the general public and specialists involved with the ocean.

STUDY GROUP

Together they form the science council's study group on marine science and technology, currently touring the east and west coasts while researching their report.

They said in Victoria on Tuesday evening that they have already made up their minds about the need for a large west coast marine sciences laboratory.

It would be distinct from the biological facility soon to be set up at Bamfield on Vancouver Island's west coast, said Dr. Dickie. The committee visited Bamfield last week.

"The laboratory would have a very geophysical aspect," said Dr. Stewart, mentioning oil exploration and mining as customers for the laboratory.

He said the payoff for the fundamental research such as the proposed laboratory would carry out "is too far in the future and too uncertain to be of interest to industry."

Dr. Stewart said oceanography would be a major preoccupation of the laboratory. "In the long run, if we want to forecast weather beyond a few days, we have to know what's going on in the ocean," he said.

MUCH MORE

Dr. Dickie added that Canada needs to know much more about the productivity of the ocean.

The study committee will make recommendations on research priorities and spending to the Science Council. The council, a crown corporation, reports directly to the prime minister.

The three scientists currently are weighing the arguments for locating a laboratory at Vancouver and Victoria.

Vancouver has UBC's oceanography department, and there is "continuing pressure" to locate at Vancouver, said Dr. Stewart.

On the other hand, Victoria is nearer the open ocean, has cleaner water and less space in Esquimalt harbor, he noted.

Today at 2:30 p.m. the scientists will meet a six-man panel of Victorians at a public meeting at the Maritime Museum. They will debate with the panel and also answer questions from the floor.

Chipping Task In Store

Overtaken Ocean Cement truck sustained fender and body damage Tuesday when bank on Shelbourne near Blair collapsed under weight of 20-ton truck, throwing it into ditch. Crane removed drum containing five or six cubic yards of cement before lifting truck out. Spokesman said hardened cement would have to be chipped out.—(William Boucher)

Student Urges Firmness:

Appeasement of Radicals Spurs Campus Violence

A Vancouver university student urged Victoria businessmen Tuesday to raise their voices against universities which permit student and faculty radicalism.

The appeal came from John Cherrington, president of the University of British Columbia's debating society. He spoke to the Kiwanis Club of Victoria at the Empress Hotel.

"Show your concern for the way universities are being run," said Mr. Cherrington. "Express your disapproval of any appeasement of radical destroyers on campus."

Mr. Cherrington told the club that he spoke for "a good segment of the student population — students who are tired of the theorizing and the rabble-rousing, and who want to get on with their education."

The student said that legitimate grievances on campuses are being distorted by a radical minority.

"The evidence is clear that these so-called reformists have really one aim: to destroy, to break free of law, or order, to shun justice."

STAND URGED

"And those who naively sympathize with these individuals are being used as tools."

Mr. Cherrington asked when university administrators are going to take a stand against radicals.

"If their policy of appeasement which has been developing during the past few years continues, then we are simply inviting violence and upheaval," he said.

FACULTY CLUB

He recalled last winter's student occupations of the administration building at faculty club at UBC and the Simon Fraser University.

"If it is reactionary to be responsible, to respect certain values, to desire justice for those who disobey the rules, then I am proud to be reactionary," said Mr. Cherrington.

When these individuals use the university as a tool for protest, when they infringe upon the welfare of the hard-working students, when they harm or threaten the taxpayers' property, they have no rights to attend university and should be expelled."

MONEY SHORTAGE

Mr. Cherrington questioned the existence of a money shortage at B.C. campuses.

Grilse Towed South After Canada Hitch

Heading for San Francisco at 9 a.m. today in tow of ocean-going tug St. Anthony is HMCS Grilse, submarine which has been on loan to Canadian navy for eight years. She will be turned over to her owners, the U.S. Navy. Twenty men will comprise security watch on board, not enough to navigate her. Submariners have been transferred to replacement, HMCS Rainbow, bought from U.S. government this year.

B.C. Plans to Stretch Three More Ferries

By IAN STREET

The provincial government announced its intention Tuesday to call tenders for the "stretching" of three more ferries, but a highways department spokesman later indicated it might take up to three years to complete the job.

A small newspaper advertisement appearing for the first time Tuesday, under the heading Notice to Shipyards, said tenders were being called for the lengthening by 84 feet each of the Queen of Saanich, Queen of Victoria and Queen of Vancouver.

ONLY ONE

Department officials said later, however, that only one of the vessels — the Queen of Victoria — would be converted this winter at a cost expected to be over $2,000,000. The job will take until spring, and only one ferry at a time can be taken out of service.

All available ferries, it is expected, will be pressed into service next summer to meet the tourist rush, which means a late fall 1970 start at earliest on the second of the new series of conversions.

The third stretching operation would therefore be carried out starting late in 1971.

CAR SPACES

The Queen of Esquimalt was out in half last winter and a new 84-foot midships section welded into place. The stretching operation added 55 new car spaces, boosting the total capacity to more than 200 cars, and providing room for 200 more passengers for a total of 1,200.

The job was done by Burrard Dry Dock, North Vancouver, for $2,200,000.

During the election campaign, Premier Bennett announced that five ferries of the mainland-Vancouver Island run would all be stretched in the near future to meet the demands of increased peak traffic.

'INTENTION NOTICE'

A department spokesman said Tuesday that the newspaper advertising, which mentioned tenders for conversion of three vessels, would be opened at 2 p.m. Sept. 25. He said that in the case of two ships, it could be better described as a "notice of intention" by the government.

The conversions, officials said, would be the same as the one carried out on the Queen of Esquimalt last winter, including the installation of sewage holding tanks. It was disclosed last week that the Queen of Esquimalt's holding tanks are dumped in deep water in the Strait of Georgia on each trip rather than being emptied into sewers at the terminals.

Ferry Bids Earmarked By Yarrows

Yarrows Ltd. shipyards will bid for two of the three ferry-stretching jobs soon to be put up for tender by the B.C. government, a company official said Tuesday.

General manager John Wallace said Yarrows was "very definitely" interested in the job and would be preparing tenders.

He said there was a "very good" chance that some of the work would come to Victoria. Yarrows is at present working on two small barges and one large one.

Meanwhile, Boilermakers Union business agent Neil Hindle welcomed the government's announcement that it would be calling tenders soon, and said he was "happy to see the government is putting out the bids on a systematic basis."

Mr. Wallace said the jobs, if won by Yarrows, would mean work for about 200 men. Mr. Hindle said this would probably not mean any new hiring, but would give "continuity" to the workers now employed. It would give stability and greater productivity to these trades, he said.

Mr. Hindle said he hoped the Yarrows bids would be "hard" ones.

Planning Role Topic

Planning as a function of the regional board will be considered at its next meeting Wednesday, Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen said Tuesday from the Union of B.C. Municipalities conference at Kamloops.

The idea has been in the board's administrative machinery for well over a year. It has been studied by committee and subcommittee but no decision has been reached.

Municipalities have differed over the amount of control the board should have over the local councils and local planning.

ONLY GRANT

Speaking Tuesday at the conference Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell reminded Greater Victoria delegates that there was the only regional district with a planning board getting a provincial grant.

He also reminded them of notification received by the board six months ago, giving a year's notice of provincial intention to discontinue the grant.

"After March 1970 the regional board is on its own as regards planning."

He said provincial government had been working with the board on details of the proposed changes in letters patent, and he expected the region would have completed its part before next year.

California-Bound?

P&O Offers Cruise Starts Here

By DON GAIN

The P & O luxury liner Arcadia, which has passed Victoria many times on round-the-world cruises, will start stopping here on June 4 next summer.

The 30,000-ton ship will visit Victoria five times in the course of cruises to California and Alaska.

"Victoria is one of the greatest revenue-producing cities in Canada for us," Donald Palmer, Vancouver manager, said Tuesday when he announced next summer's cruises.

He said that in the past nine months, revenue from Victoria had increased 67 per cent.

Four Alaska cruises will originate in Vancouver next summer, and five California cruises in Victoria, each planned for 1,800 passengers, Mr. Palmer said.

The first voyage to Alaska will start May 27 in Vancouver. Ports of call are Juneau, Skagway, Glacier Bay and Sitka. Identical cruises will begin in Vancouver June 10, July 8 and July 22, arriving in Victoria June 18, July 16 and July 30.

The six-day California cruises start in Victoria June 4, calling at San Francisco, Los Angeles and returning to Vancouver June 10. Other California cruises begin in Victoria on June 18, July 16 and July 30.

P & O liner Arcadia

The 720-foot Arcadia will bring a shipload of tourists to Ogden Point on June 26 as part of a circle cruise of Vancouver Island which begins in California, pauses at Vancouver and continues through the Inside Passage and round to Victoria before returning to San Francisco and Los Angeles.

The final cruise of the summer for the Arcadia will leave Vancouver Aug. 7 with stops in San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco, ending in Vancouver Aug. 16.

The Arcadia was built in 1954 and can accommodate more than 1,300 persons when filled to capacity. On the summer cruises the number of passengers is reduced to provide additional space in dining rooms, on games decks and at swimming pools.

There will be only one class instead of the usual two.

Ships of Matson, American President and Princess Lines

made 15-calls at Victoria this summer and are expected to make longer visits next summer.

Mr. Palmer, who described P & O Lines as the largest passenger line in the world, said one of the reasons why his company has planned the Victoria cruises is because the city has "such tremendous fascination" for Californians.

Whimsical Jogging Problem to Patrols

A jogger who carries a shopping bag with an empty milk bottle inside at 4 a.m. runs the risk of being picked up by a police officer, who might charge him with vagrancy.

That's what happened to T. Byron McNutt of 4150 Grange. "I do a 10-mile jog twice a week," McNutt said Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court, where he stood trial on the vagrancy charge.

"And that's not the first time I got stopped," he added. To be considered a vagrant, a person must be without apparent means of support, have no fixed address and be unable to explain his presence at the time and place of arrest. And that's where the hangup was in McNutt's case.

DAIRY FARMER

He has lived at the same address for more than 50 years, and he is the owner of a dairy farm on Wilkinson Road.

He told court that he had been stopped on previous occasions.

once by an auxiliary policeman who was under the influence of alcohol.

"There were two of them. One became quite abusive — he was half tanked, the other was pretty level-headed," McNutt said.

ALLOWED TO GO

"After a few minutes I was allowed to go, but a few nights later, the same thing happens and by this time I'm getting fed up with the whole business."

He said he told the officers that they could get all information at their office because he had been questioned a few nights before, but the policemen wouldn't take that for an answer.

"One gets out of the car, sneaks behind me and pushes me. I fall down, and the next thing I know he's riding me. I thought, well, if they want to give me any rough stuff they'll do it now, and I covered my head."

When he was arrested Monday morning he first argued with the police officers, McNutt said.

"When I finally told him my name, he says that I'm too late."

Victoria Constable F. W. Mills told court that he asked the accused for his name, address and reason for his running along the street.

"He just said that he was going to Saanich, asking me if I knew where that was."

NO BLAME

Judge William Ostler said he couldn't blame anyone involved in the case. "It's difficult for police officers in these troubled times of increasing crime all over the continent to distinguish between honest and established citizens who engage in a somewhat whimsical conduct and a person who is trying to hide something."

Whimsical conduct was no offence, he said, and he hoped it never would be, but it should be noted that the policeman had reason to be suspicious. The case was dismissed.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Where do you stand on sex education in the public schools? Some of my friends say it gives kids ideas and leads them into doing things they have no business doing. My sister-in-law in Michigan is horrified at what her children were taught last year in sixth grade. She described the literature (complete with pictures) as "disgusting and filthy."

Yesterday I received a mailing from Dallas that knocked me off my chair. It said this whole campaign for sex education is being pushed by a Communist-backed organization called SIECUS (Sex Information and Education Council of the United States).

According to this article,

Burning Questions

Who's Mary Calderone? Do you believe children should be given sex education in the public schools? If so, at what age? I am confused and frightened. My husband and I have faith in your judgment. Will you guide us?—Sun-Times Readers.

Dear Readers: Mary Calderone is a Quaker, a Vassar graduate, a physician, the daughter of the famous photographer, Edward Steichen, and the wife of Dr. Frank Calderone formerly with the World Health Organization. She has three daughters and two teenage grandsons. Dr. Calderone was the National Director of Planned Parenthood and founded SIECUS in 1964.

SIECUS is a non-profit health agency made up of religious, medical, educational and other professional leaders. Among organizations supporting sex education in the schools are the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, the American Public Health Association, the American Medical Association and the National Parent-Teachers Association. Father James T. McHugh, director of the Family Life Division of the U.S. Catholic Conference described most of the critics of SIECUS as members of radical rightwing organizations—masquerading under high sounding names.

Much of It Wrong

Our children are getting "sex education" every day of their lives whether we like it or not, and much of the education is the wrong kind. They are being stimulated and titillated by TV, advertising, radio, records, magazines, billboards and movies. Sex is presented as glamorous, fun—the "in" thing.

Children must be taught early (fifth grade is not too soon) that sex is not something people do for kicks—that every sex act carries with it a solemn responsibility, not only to the person with whom he is having sexual relations, but to one's family and one's community.

The ideal place for sex education is at home. Unfortunately the vast majority of parents are ill-equipped to do the job because they are uninformed, and unable to discuss sex comfortably and objectively with their children. I have seen the SIECUS material and while I feel that some of it is a shade too graphic, a great deal of it has merit.

As with any new program, mistakes will be made, but I firmly believe our children need this program. They are bound to profit from it by learning to accept their sexuality as a normal, healthy, positive, uplifting force in their lives.

Right to Vote Given Women

ZURICH (AP)—Zurich has become the sixth Canton, or state, of Switzerland to grant women equal political rights in communal affairs.

The all-male electorate accepted a proposal to grant the women the right to vote on communal affairs and be elected to communal posts by a vote of 92,402 to 67,192. Only 57.9 per cent of the registered voters went to the polls.

Two All at Sea Over Smokes

LOWESTOFT, England (CP)—David Lindo, 20, and Peter Madgett, 19, were smoking 40 cigarettes a day apiece and decided the only way to quit was to go to sea without any. They set out to row across the North Sea to The Netherlands but eight hours later were picked up in distress by this Suffolk port's lifeboat.

Cultured Milk Item in Cookbook

Cookbooks make fascinating reading, I think. At least the good ones especially those that give interesting tidbits on the side.

Such a one arrived on my desk Tuesday. It really isn't a new book, it is a revised edition of the late Nellie Lyle Pattison's The Canadian Cook Book.

The editors of the revised edition, Helen Wattle and Elmor Donaldson, have this to say: "Many changes appear in this edition caused by changing food habits, new food products, new methods and equipment. New recipes have been added including specially-marked basic recipes with variations and shortcuts."

The book, which has been enlarged by 200 pages, is beautifully illustrated with both color and black and white photographs.

Charts and tables, replacement values and equivalent measures, herbs, substitute ingredients, temperatures, weights and measures are at the end of the book along with the index.

There is all sorts of interesting information including a full cheese chart. Under cheeses you can find out how to make yogurt which the book states is really not a cheese, but rather a cultured milk.

Anyway if you are interested in making yogurt first buy a carton of plain yogurt at the store. Save one tablespoon.

Heat 4 cups milk in a 2-quart saucepan carefully, only until milk rises to the top of the pan. Remove from heat and cool to lukewarm. To 1 cup of the lukewarm milk and 1 tablespoon yogurt and ¼ cup skim milk powder; mix thoroughly to dissolve.

Stir into remaining milk and again mix well. Pour the mixture into 1 large or 5-6 individual non-metallic bowls. Cover with a plate, and cover all with a bath towel and leave in a warm place 4-5 hours, or until thick. Chill well before serving.

For additional flavor, add to the mixture before the long setting time 1 tablespoon drained crushed pineapple or two juicy maraschino cherries for each serving. Serves 5 to 6.

All the recipes in the book are for four servings unless otherwise stated.

There is a little section on giving a wine and cheese party.

When the party is held before dinner, allow about 4 ounces of cheese per person when ordering, and about half that amount if the party takes place after dinner.

Serve 4 to 8 different kinds of cheese, according to the number of guests, and use the following as a nucleus, adding or subtracting as required: Brie, Boursault, Roquefort or Blue, and Port du Salut. Aged Cheddar and Gouda make good additions.

Choose a light wine to serve with a mild cheese and a heavier wine for the stronger varieties, a combined total of approximately 12 ounces per person.

A recipe for Chicken Caudolette presumes that you know that the chicken should be cut into pieces and browned in a pan.

In the pan in which the chicken was browned cook 1 thinly sliced onion and 1 clove of crushed garlic until golden brown. Blend in 1 cup water, 1-8 ounce tin tomato paste, 2 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper; cover and simmer until the chicken is tender, about 1 hour. Add ½ cup sliced mushrooms and ½ cup dry red wine (optional) and cook uncovered for 5 minutes more.

Another recipe for cucumbers says this is named Soused Cucumbers in the Lunenburg area of Nova Scotia.

Slice 3 medium sized cucumbers very thin; sprinkle with salt and leave for about 20 minutes. Combine 3 cups sugar, 2 cups white vinegar and ¼ teaspoon white pepper. Press as much juice as possible from the cucumbers and marinate in the vinegar.

Again press as much liquid as possible from the cucumbers and combine with a sauce made by mixing 1 cup mayonnaise with ½ cup whipped cream, ½ cup sour cream and 2 tablespoons finely chopped dill. Add salt and white pepper to taste. Serve with cold meats and dishes of Russian or Scandinavian origin.

Lines Around the Mouth

The mouth area tends to fur so much attention, the quicker the lines are smoothed out and made to disappear, the younger you will look. A lotion-like substance 2nd Debut applied nightly will make the lines in and the skin become smooth once more. You will probably use 2nd Debut on your entire face to banish dryness, but do use a little extra care around your mouth. After applying the 2nd Debut massage very lightly, until it disappears into your skin. Your drug or dept. store has 2nd Debut with CEF 600 or CEF 1200 in double strength and you'll find it a genuine delight to use.

St. George's Guild

Flower Artistry Tea Highlight

A demonstration featuring the creation of artistic floral arrangements will highlight a fall flower tea planned Saturday by the St. George's Evening Guild. The event will be held in St. George's Church Hall, off Maynard Road in Cadboro Bay, and will start at 3 p.m.

The floral demonstration will be conducted by Mrs. Rosemary Wormald, who has been associated with floral design activities for the past 20 years in both Victoria and Seattle.

Last fall Mrs. Wormald conducted a flower arranging class for the Saanich school board; and this year she will instruct such night school classes for both the Saanich and Victoria school boards.

Her demonstration will show how greens, flowers and other items from the average home garden can be transformed into floral beauty for practically any room of the home.

Proceeds of the tea will go toward various charity projects of the church, and will be augmented through the sale of the arrangements following the demonstration.

In charge of arrangements for the event are Mrs. W. E. Moore, Mrs. R. W. Matthews and Mrs. W. M. Bailey.

Lovelier You: Freckle Fight

By MARY SUE MILLER

By the end of summer, some freckle hands sprout more freckles than a small boy's nose. And the spots don't seem to go well with fall clothes and activities.

In some instances, freckles on the hands can be lightened with a skin bleach. Bleaches come in several strengths and it is best to seek the advice at a cosmetic counter or from your druggist.

Appearances can be improved, particularly for evening occasions, by the use of waterproof body makeup. This is available in liquid, cream and cake form. Used in a tone that matches your skin and deftly applied, it does a good job of blending in the freckles. In case you wonder, it will not rub off on clothing. A thorough rinsing is required to remove it.

means wearing gloves when you are outdoors. You need to apply a sunblock until the light grows cold if you participate in sports or go gloveless.

Freckles darken and multiply with the least bit of sunning. Shade chases them into hiding.

Weeding Plan Put to Test

TORONTO (CP) — Four British girls who declared themselves unhappy with the men they have met in Canada advertised in a newspaper Monday for better ones.

Before they took their telephone receiver off the hook late Monday they had collected more than 40 prospective names.

The women, aged 21 to 24, said they wish to be anonymous.

They have a system to help weed out undesirables. They take turns answering the phone, list the name, age and occupation of the caller and tell him to call back later for a luncheon appointment. And they plan to go to the lunches in pairs.

When they sort out their grab-bag they hope to have a steady male friend each.

Their rhyming ad in the personal column read:

Hear ye! Hear ye!
Four despondent damsels and Cry out to knights in armor clad.
Bold and fearless may they be.

To fill these woeful hearts with glee.

So Anglo-Saxons — a challenge rare!

Come hither and rescue these maidens layre!

The four work in offices. Two are secretaries, one is a legal assessor and the fourth works with an architect. Asked to describe their ideal men, they formed this consensus:

He should be reasonably well-educated, decisive and generous with an adequate supply of money.

'Lie Spurs Continued Fake' Two Larmer Quads Die From Breathing Failure

By JUDY JENKINS

Truth, patience, action and health are the four attributes that should characterize the relationships of Catholic women in their parish councils, according to the national director of the Catholic Women's League.

"We must try to communicate truthfully to one another," Most Rev. James Mahoney of Saskatoon told about 300 CWL members Tuesday at the formal opening dinner of the 49th annual national convention.

The first fake demands a continued living of the fake all of the time, Bishop Mahoney said. It's hard to be a good liar because a person must remember all the lies he told before. He said his first principle was truth in communication.

Patience is necessary to take down the "walls between women of the councils," to cooperate with the "one nobody likes."

"Action and not just talk" is the third principle, he said. "I know many leagues that are cemented by soapuds," he said. The nature of the activity is not half as important as the fact of the activity, he told league members at the British Columbia government dinner in the Empress.

Good health, both material and mental, is necessary to league solidarity. Members shouldn't join the CWL just to work for themselves, but for others, he said.

"When we make distinctions, we make ourselves superior to Jesus Christ," Bishop Mahoney said. "Let's not make distinctions" between the people that are easy to like and those what are difficult to know, he said.

The Philippine Nurses' Association provided entertainment at the dinner with a fashion show and several Philippine dances.

Delegates were greeted by Mrs. Sally Rogers, general convener; Mrs. Grace Shelling of Duncan, president of the Victoria Diocesan Council, and Most Rev. Remi De Roo, Bishop of Victoria.

The first of the daily Masses during the convention was celebrated Tuesday at St. Andrew's Cathedral by five bishops and an archbishop.

Bishop Mahoney was the principal celebrant, assisted by Archbishop James Carney of Vancouver, Bishop Fergus O'Grady of Prince George; Bishop Emmett Doyle of Nelson; Bishop James Mulvihill of Whitehorse, and Bishop Remi De Roo of Victoria.

Activities will open today with a workshop on communications, directed by Catherine Cannon, at 9:30 a.m. Mass will be celebrated at St. Anne's House of Studies, Queenswood, at noon, and a "buncheon" will follow.

Sister Lina Gaudette will direct a workshop on leadership training and group discussion techniques at 2:30 p.m. in the Empress. A sherry party will be held at the Queen Victoria Inn at 7:30 p.m. Directors will meet at the Empress at 8:30 p.m.

The convention, following the theme, Through Help, Hope, will continue through Saturday. It is the first national CWL convention in Victoria in 35 years.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two of the three-day-old Larmer quadruplets—a boy and a girl—died Tuesday in hospital.

Death of the first-born quad, a two-pound, 7½-ounce girl, occurred shortly after 2 a.m. and the third-born, the only boy among the quads, weighing two pounds, 6½-ounces, died seven hours later. The remaining two quads were reported in fair condition.

The health of the first-born quad began deteriorating five hours after her birth at 6 a.m. Saturday. The boy became sick Monday. Both deaths apparently resulted from respiratory failure.

The four infants, born two months prematurely, were all placed in incubators immediately after birth. They were baptized Sunday.

The parents are, Jim Larmer, 28, manager of ABC Installations Ltd., a contract plumbing firm, and his wife Bernadette, 25.

Mrs. Larmer said she "felt great" physically but said she didn't know there could be so much heartbreak involved. The Larmer have one other son, Brian, 3.

Mr. Larmer said they had received one offer of financial help so far—a supply of cereals and vitamins from a pharmaceutical firm. The Larmer quads are only the fourth set known to have been born in B.C.

Sporting scene at Esquimalt Silver Threads meeting in Jubilee hall on Fraser Street saw Harry Osborne, 78, of 825 Wark, win game-ending dart toss. Each player had one throw, with winner closest to bullseye, and he hit it. Not close enough were Mrs. Alice Jeatt, 79, left, of 1184 Esquimalt, and Mrs. Ann Patten, 78, of 1194 Esquimalt. (William Boucher).

Flaw Pointed Out

Late-Night Rides Desirable, But...

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said Tuesday the provincial government is willing to consider legislation requiring employers to provide transportation for women working late at night. He warned, however, that to do so might reduce employment opportunities for women.

"Personally I think it is good labor practice for employers to see transportation is provided for women employees in the middle of the night," Mr. Peterson said.

"But the problem is when to draw the line. In some areas it's as dangerous to walk around after dark as it is in others after midnight."

The minister noted that before Social Credit came to power in 1952 the Board of Industrial Relations had a regulation requiring employers to provide transportation for women employees at night. It was scrapped by the government of the day, he said, because women's groups in the province felt it was discriminatory and reduced their chance of finding jobs.

Victoria, Oak Bay NDP:

Press Deal Unfair During Campaign

The Victoria and Oak Bay NDP association says it got an unfair deal from the news media during the August election campaign.

A memorandum following a Monday night bull-session about the NDP's future at the Aug. 27 election cites "the difficulty of obtaining adequate and reliable comment and news coverage during an election..." as one of several topics discussed.

Association president Lloyd Brereton said later the criticism was directed also to the party itself for not going about obtaining coverage and comment in the right way.

GENERAL PRAISE

Although he had general praise for reporters on the job, Mr. Brereton said, "We can't be sure of a fair deal."

The criticism was a "general impression" rather than a specific complaint, he said, but "I'm speaking of the quantity of news coverage and the character of editorial comment."

"When it comes to the nitty-gritty, we're going to have the press against us," he added.

EDITORIAL 'BLANTED'

He noted a "very slanted editorial" in the Colonist "pointing out the extreme danger" of NDP government which would "end the freedom of Canada."

Asked for a specific example of inadequate news coverage, Mr. Brereton said that according to his memory, "nothing" was entered in the Colonist following an all-candidates NDP meeting in an Oak Bay school on the Sunday before the election.

(The Tuesday, Aug. 26, edition of the Colonist — the first edition following the Sunday meeting — carried a full story

Mr. Brereton said one of the local radio stations also failed to report anything about that meeting.

Mr. Brereton said the general news coverage throughout the campaign was "fairly good" and he said NDP leader Tom Berger "was given a fair showing."

He said more than 70 people took part in Monday's talks, which were split up among eight tables. Other topics discussed were:

• "How best to counteract the false impression of the party and its objectives which Mr. Bennett and his colleagues succeeded in foisting on the public."

• "The difficulty of raising adequate funds to counteract the lavish expenditure made by the other parties by the corporations supporting them."

• "Methods of keeping in touch with the large numbers of new supporters who came forward during the election; the relationship to the trade unions."

• "The need for the party to enter more into municipal politics..."

Sharp Concludes Peking Favors UN Seat

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Tuesday night that he has concluded as a result of talks with the Communist Chinese that the Peking regime would like China to become a member of the United Nations.

He said that Secretary-General U Thant agreed with him that China has an interest in joining.

He said that Canada was disappointed that Biafra rejected an agreement between Nigeria and the International Red Cross that could have resulted in the resumption of daylight relief in Stockholm again on Saturday.

The minister said that Canadian Ambassador Mary Meagher and the Chinese representatives will resume formal talks visit to attend the opening of the General Assembly. He was to return to Ottawa Tuesday night and come back here next week for a round of talks with foreign ministers. He will address the assembly Sept. 23.

He repeated past statements that he did not know how long the talks will last.

Sharp was here for a one-day visit to attend the opening of the assembly Sept. 23.

It's a matter of choice

by Anne Gilbert

The Director of Education at Johnson & Johnson explains how to choose the MODESS napkin that's right for you. Choose from three different shapes: tapered, deep-tapered, and regular.

The three different Modess napkins are tapered, deep-tapered, and regular-shaped. Now every woman can choose the one she's sure will fit her needs best.

Every Modess napkin gives the smooth, neat fit that's essential in pant suits like this by Miss Sam Valley.

SANITARY protection has changed a lot in the past few years. Now there are many more napkins to choose from: different shapes, different sizes.

You don't hurry into your favourite dress shop and buy the first dress you see. Well, neither do you buy the first box of napkins you see. If you do, you stand a good chance of getting a napkin that won't fit you at all.

Take the time to the best fit

Napkins that fit? Definitely! Now that napkins come in different shapes and sizes, you can find one that fits you. What's more you should.

A napkin that fits can't slip. And if it can't slip, it won't chafe or show.

A napkin that fits is protection against accidents. It won't curl along the edges so that your lingerie is spotted.

It's shape that really counts

Fit is determined by the shape of the napkin. That's why Modess napkins come in three different shapes: two tapered and one regular.

A tapered napkin is shaped: wide in front and narrow in back. It's designed to follow your body contours, and so fit snugly.

A regular-shaped napkin is rectangular, but slightly moulded at both ends. This is the original napkin, and many women find it provides the best fit.

Descriptions of the three different Modess napkins are coming. But first let's look at three factors common to every Modess napkin. Each is a major reason why Modess napkins can promise security.

Moisture-proof protection

Every Modess napkin has a thin, flat film of moisture-proof polyethylene extending the full length and width of the napkin. In the tapered napkins this film, or shield, lies flat, between layers of absorbent fluff filling. In the regular-shaped napkin it's actually bonded to the outside.

This polyethylene shield is absolutely moisture-proof. The menstrual flow can never spot through a Modess napkin.

Fast absorbency means maximum comfort

Every Modess napkin is wrapped in a soft, perforated cover. These perforations actually speed up absorbency. The menstrual flow is drawn through them into the centre of the napkin where it is dispersed. And the napkin cover stays relatively dry. It retains the soft comfort it had when you first put it on.

Concern with hygiene

A third feature common to every Modess napkin is hygiene. Modess napkins are made by Johnson & Johnson. For years we have manufactured hospital and baby products, so that hygienic conditions are the rule throughout our plants. It's nice to know that such care is taken in the production of something as personal as your sanitary napkin.

Now, back to the choice of a napkin shape for you. Remember, that while shape is what determines fit, there are also other napkin differences which you should consider before making your final choice.

MODESS CAREFREE Sanitary Napkins

The Carefree napkin was designed especially for younger women. This doesn't mean you can't wear it if you're over thirty, but means it's tapered to fit a youthful figure and to absorb a regular flow. The Modess moisture-proof polyethylene shield extends full-length and full-width through the centre of each Carefree napkin.

MODESS SOFF-FORM Sanitary Napkins

The Soff-Form napkin is deep-tapered. Extra depth makes it super absorbent. If your flow is exceptionally heavy, and a tapered napkin fits you best, this is the napkin for you. The moisture-proof polyethylene shield is built into the centre of this napkin, too.

MODESS Regular Sanitary Napkins

The Regular napkin follows the standard rectangular shape, and is designed for a regular flow. This is the Modess napkin with the unique protective shield, called the "boat" shield.

It extends across the bottom and part way up the sides (see dark line on cross-section at left). If you have a problem with spotting, consider this napkin seriously. It gives the extra protection no other napkin can.

Maybe now you know enough about Modess napkins to choose the best one for you. If not, try them all. Start with the one that you think will suit you best, just the way you do when you try on a dress.

Once you've found the best fit, you'll find that your napkin will be a whole lot easier to forget. And when you think about it, that's what a napkin should be: reliable enough to forget.

Anne Gilbert is Director of Education at Johnson & Johnson. It's her job to know all about napkins, and to pass this knowledge on to you. If you ever have questions about Modess products or feminine hygiene, write to her.

Modess napkins come in three different shapes: Soff-Form (deep-tapered), Regular (regular-shape), and Carefree (tapered). Now you can choose the one that fits your needs best. MODRESS, CAREFREE, and SOFF-FORM are trademarks of JOHNSON & JOHNSON or Affiliated Companies. © JULY 69

NATO

Canada's Position Decided In Secret

OTTAWA (CP) — The shape of Canada's future commitment to the NATO alliance has been worked out but details of the plan are being kept secret for the time being.

An announcement is expected before the end of next week.

Officials said Tuesday only a few minor points remain to be settled before the plan—involving the reduction and restructuring of Canadian forces in Europe—achieves final form.

NO COMMENT

They refused to comment on a Canadian Press report from Germany last week that Canadian forces on the Continent would be chopped to 3,500 from the present 10,000 and that Canada's four nuclear strike squadrons would be disbanded.

Speculation has persisted for some time that Canada will get out of the nuclear attack role.

Prime Minister Trudeau announced in April that the government had decided to cut Canada's commitment in Europe but did not give details.

COMBAT GROUP

Later, Defence Minister Leo Cadieux told Canadians that the mechanized brigade group now in Europe would be replaced by an air-transportable combat group with helicopter support.

The proposed size of the combat group has never been disclosed. Some reports placed it as low as 2,000 men. The present mechanized brigade group has a strength of just under 6,000.

Cadieux has said Canada will also maintain a separate air element in Europe, equipped initially with CF-104 Starfighters such as now are being flown by the Canadian NATO air division.

THREE YEARS

The changes were to take place over a three-year period. In addition to the four nuclear-equipped Starfighter squadrons, Canada's NATO air division consists of two Starfighters reconnaissance squadrons. According to some reports, these will be retained.

About 3,800 men serve in the air division.

School Work

Final approval to go ahead with a $151,219 addition to St. J. William junior high school has been given by the education department. At the same time the department authorized $31,000 in alterations at Sidney elementary school.

Bentley Marks Birthday Toothless, Bentleyless

GUILDFORD, England — The man who founded Bentley automobiles marked his 51st birthday by driving a smaller, cheaper car.

"I can't afford a Bentley of my own," said W. O. Bentley, who drives an old Morris Saloon, "a very reliable little car."

He founded Bentley cars 50 years ago and the firm was sold 38 years ago to Rolls-Royce. Bentley, who lives here with his wife, said he was not much in the mood for celebration. On his birthday, he went to the dentist to have teeth pulled.

WASHINGTON — U.S. senators and representatives joined to cheer Apollo 11 astronauts Neil Armstrong, Michael Collins and Edwin Aldrin. Speaking briefly to Congress, the three said Apollo 11 shows "national goals can be met where there is a strong enough will. We cannot launch our planetary probes from a springboard of poverty, discrimination or unrest, but neither can we wait until every terrestrial problem has been solved."

NEW YORK — Yippie leader Abbie Hoffman said half a million people will demonstrate in Chicago during his fourth coming trial with seven other radicals accused of conspiring to riot at the 1968 Democratic national convention. "If you think the scene in Grant Park was something last year, wait until this year," Hoffman said.

MASSET — Robert Davidson, hereditary Haida chief who directed the Aug. 22 raising of the first totem pole erected here in 60 years, died at 88. He was formally known as Chief Gungwa of the old Indian settlement of Yan.

WASHINGTON — President Nixon signed a bill increasing the salary of the vice president to $82,500 a year from $43,000. The measure provides for an identical salary increase for the Speaker of the House.

LONDON — Pauline Clark, 42, was charged with murder after the headless body of her mother, Mabel Clark, 78, was found on the kitchen floor of the elderly woman's suburban home.

WASHINGTON — President Nixon formally nominated one-time Barry Goldwater aide Dean Burch, 41, a right-wing Arizona lawyer, as chairman of the U.S. Federal Communications Commission, whose many tasks include supervision of TV.

KIMBERLEY — Defeated Social Credit candidate Harry Broadhurst said a lawyer has advised him it would be "worthwhile" to seek a judicial recount of the Aug. 27 provincial election vote in the Kootenay riding. Mr. Broadhurst lost the contest by a 12-vote margin to NDP Party whip Leo Nimick.

Noronic Horror Recalled

TORONTO (CP) — Twenty-years ago today, fire destroyed the proud cruise ship Noronic, snugly moored to the Queen's Quay in the seeming safety of Toronto harbor.

The worst ship fire on the Great Lakes in a century killed 119 men, women and children. The 6,900-ton, 36-year veteran of the lakes, $5,000,000 pride of the Canada Steamship Lines cruise fleet, put into Toronto at 7 p.m. EDT Friday, Sept. 16, 1949. About 2:15 a.m. a small fire broke out in a linen closet below decks. It soon enveloped the ship.

All but four of the dead were eventually identified. The four he today in a Toronto cemetery under a headstone which is a memorial to all the victims.

Basenji Back With Owners

After being missing for a month, Spot, the basenji dog, is back with his owners after being found alive and well in Ross Bay Cemetery.

He went over the fence at an Adams Road kennel Aug. 16.

His owners, Mr. and Mrs. William Steffler of 1388 Ernest Avenue, had put him in the kennel while they went for a week-long trip to Campbell River.

Tuesday night, a friend called Mrs. Steffler to say the dog had been seen in the cemetery.

"We had just about given up hope of ever seeing him again when we got the call. We drove through the cemetery three times without seeing him and were going to start home when my husband saw him standing beside the car. He was glad to get home."

She said the dog appeared in good health. How did Spot get from Atkins Road in Langford to Ross Bay Cemetery, and where had he been for the whole month?

"I guess we'll never know," said Mrs. Steffler, "but right now he is flaked out in the living room, fast asleep."

Veterans Pensions

Basic Rate Under Review

OTTAWA (CP) — The matter of basic pension rates for veterans is being discussed in a general review of welfare being conducted by the federal government. Veterans Affairs Minister Jean-Eudes Dube said Tuesday.

He told the Commons standing committee on veterans affairs that study of the basic rate was not included in the terms of reference of the Woods committee, which reported in 1968.

The committee, headed by Mr. Justice Mervyn Woods of the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal, made 148 recommendations, many of them incorporated in a recent government policy statement.

Dube said the policy statement does not mean the government has taken "a rigid or intractable" view. It would give careful consideration to suggestions by the committee and the veterans organizations that will appear before it during the next two weeks.

After the committee reports, legislation will be drafted for presentation to Parliament which resumes Oct. 22.

MPs said the current basic pension rate—$4,776 for a married veteran with two children—is near the poverty line. They speculated on formulas to raise it to at least a 50-per-cent person. Most questions were about the proposed new appeal structure, which will remain within the department.

Dube said a separate appeal body would be costly and would not achieve any more than the one proposed in the policy statement.

He said a "benefit-of-the-doubt" clause in new legislation will weigh heavily in favor of the veteran.

He reiterated that all Hong Kong veterans with a disability would get at least a 50-per-cent pension. Dependents of dead Hong Kong veterans would also get a least a 50-per-cent person. Of the 1975 Canadians who defended Hong Kong early in the Second World War, 290 were killed in the 17-day battle, 267 died while prisoners of war during the next four years, 1,418 came back from the prison camp and 201 of these have died. Of the 1,217 left, only eight do not get a disability pension and more than 800 get a pension of more than 50 per cent.

Dube said 389 would benefit from the 50-per-cent minimum clause, and so would the dependents of those already dead.

Amputee Not Alone

'Pain' Payments Still Going On

OTTAWA (CP) — Late in the Second World War a military policeman on duty in Canada was struck by a truck and lost one leg at the hip.

He was awarded $3,500 for loss of the leg and $1,500 for "pain and suffering."

Under the law, the $3,500 went directly to the government for investment in its pension fund.

The man, advised that the $1,500 was his, bought a car. After he spent the money, he found out that it too should have been turned over to the government.

The result was that a deduction was made from his monthly disability pension cheque. So far he has repaid $2,320 through the monthly deduction, which will continue for the rest of his life.

Ross Whitcher (L-Brace) described the case to the Commons standing committee on veterans affairs, which held a special session Tuesday to clear up business before the House resumes sitting Oct. 22.

Whitcher asked whether a proposed change in pensions legislation, to allow awards for pain and suffering to go directly to the person injured, will be retroactive.

Veterans Affairs Minister Jean-Eudes Dube, asking for a memo on the case, said he will think it over.

"It does appear to be a strange situation," he said.

Whitcher noted that the man has repaid $230 more than the original $1,500 he spent.

The justification for lifelong repayment was that the $1,500, if invested in the pension fund, would have earned interest.

A Royal Canadian Legion official said later there are a number of similar cases in which a veteran accidentally spent a court award, only to wind up with a permanent deduction from his pension as a result. Pensioners aware of the law can take the court award in cash and accept a reduced pension, or allow the government to spread it over the life of the pension.

Dad Did All the Girl's Rubdowns

CHICAGO (UPI) — Businessman Samuel Saikin asked his former secretary to undergo an operation which would have erased her memory and when she refused he murdered her, Saikin's son testified Tuesday.

On the opening day of his father's trial Joel Saikin, 25, calmly recited the bizarre events, including a father-son love triangle, that he said led to the Nov. 5, 1967, murder of Ella Jean Scott.

Saikin said he met Miss Scott, who was a go-go dancer as well as a stenographer, in the spring of 1967 and they began to live together. In June, he said, his father suggested that the two come to live on his Chesterton, Ind., retreat, "Dogpatch Farm."

Miss Scott's body was found Feb. 18 packed in a steel drum and buried in a shallow grave on the farm.

After the couple began living at the farm, Saikin said, his father developed a "close relationship" with Miss Scott. They would "kiss and hug each other" and the later nightly rubdowns to Miss Scott during which other members of the family were barred from the home, he said.

As the relationship between Miss Scott and his father ripened, he said, his planned marriage with the 18-year-old Miss Scott was cancelled. During the summer Saikin hired Miss Scott as his secretary.

Then, Saikin testified, his father discovered Miss Scott was married to Air Force Staff Sgt. Samuel Mumma. The sergeant was then invited to the farm to visit his estranged wife, he said.

Eventually the couple left together, he said, and Miss Scott went to Las Vegas, where she worked as a go-go dancer under the name Tina Mumma.

At the elder Saikin's expense, Saikin said, Miss Scott returned Nov. 4 and the father asked her to "go to Michigan" for the operation which would wipe out her memory. The older Saikin promised he would then adopt her, Saikin said.

Miss Scott refused to submit to the operation and threatened to blackmail the businessman if he forced her to undergo it, Saikin said.

He said Miss Scott was then taken to one of the company's warehouses, where his father made her bend over and shot her in the head. He testified he helped his father stuff the body in the drum, transport it to the farm and bury it.

The elder Saikin has steadfastly insisted on his innocence and last March he the murder.

Pay Raise Again Finds Trudeau Warm

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA (Special) — With his outback and phase-out belt-tightening program for federal government spending "austerity" scarcely begun, Prime Minister Trudeau is expressing "sympathy" with demands by Liberal parliamentarians for a pay raise.

Currently MPs get an annual $12,000 plus a $6,000 tax-free expense allowance, which a majority of cost accountants have calculated actually amounts to something more like $22,000.

In addition there are such fringe benefits as a weekly Air Canada pass, free rail travel, no-charge long distance phone service which this year costs the treasury $325,000 — and expense-paid trips abroad. Cabinet ministers get a basic $35,000 and the prime minister $45,000 plus even more "perks."

Is Belt That Tight?

That last time Parliament raised its own pay — the Senate out itself in on the take with the threat that, if the Red Chamber couldn't have it, then neither could the lower House — it was done in secret.

The pay cheque in the Commons, raised by former prime minister Pearson, leaped from $12,000 to $18,000.

And such was the hostile reaction from the voting taxpayers that a great many parliamentarians shrink from trying it again. But some of them are.

Liberals MPs at this week's government caucus raised the issue.

The young "swingmen" from the metro Toronto area mainly were responsible — the government has little Commons support, except from Quebec, in other regions, including the Maritimes and the Prairies. From the West coast it's a mixed political bag.

Obviously aware of the possible peril of public protest when the government itself is preaching "restraint," the prime minister passed the pay raise back to parliament.

But at the same time he left no doubt but that he stood with the parliamentarians in their demand for more money.

Asked about the demands, he agreed that a raise in pay had become "an increasingly serious problem."

He went on: "I think members from all sides would be interested in a pay raise."

TRUDEAU SYMPATHETIC

"And, great parliamentarian that I am, I would be very sympathetic to demands by members of all parties if there was a disposition among them to examine it."

Parliamentarians, because they were doing "a very crucial job," had to enjoy salaries at a level he defined as "respectable."

While he didn't specify what "respectability" meant in terms of dollars, the prime minister did observe that parliamentarians made less than many civil servants and even some cabinet executive assistants.

CIVIL SERVICE

This comparison with civil service, said government staff organization leaders, would do little to convince government employees that they aren't being made the experimental goats of federal austerity.

The prime minister's use of "respectable" in relation to salary levels was felt to be particularly cutting.

But while expressing "sympathy" with parliamentary demands for "respectable" salaries, the prime minister was careful not to say he would meet them.

Parliamentary pay raises, he emphasized were the business of Parliament and not of the prime minister.

To this position there was some resentment. Parliamentarians seemed to feel this put them on the public spot of having to decide how much more they should get, then of voting for the increase, and finally waiting the approval — or otherwise — of the taxpayers at the next election.

Six years ago when Parliament rushed through the $6,000 raise in secret the Commons comforted itself that the public memory is short.

But they discovered it wasn't that short.

And the prime minister, while cheering them on from the sidelines, has left them undecided as to what to do.

They have enormous costs — two homes, one in Ottawa, the other in the constituency — at the next election. Yet the voters will be angry.

Post Office Spreads Wings

OTTAWA (Special) — Communications Minister Eric Kierans is decentralizing the post office, and the civil service staff "freeze" is being thawed enough to permit him to hire the necessary management men for the operation.

Up for bids in the post office department are four executive jobs paying nearly a total annual $100,000.

And except for what the Public Service Commission describes as an exceedingly few openings for specialized economists in recent months, these are the only senior civil service jobs available.

THEY'RE NEEDED

The exception in the "freeze-up" of the federal staff has been made for the post office, officials explained Tuesday, because highly skilled management professionals are required to decentralize Kierans' word for it — the department.

Top administrative decisions, previously reserved for departmental headquarters here in the capital, now are to be delegated to key regional offices around the country.

ONTARIO ALONE

Ontario, for example, where the flow of mail is by far heavier than anywhere else in Canada, is to become a sort of "post-office-within-the-post-office."

Similarly, regional executive

operational headquarters are to be "decentralized" from Ottawa into the Maritimes, Quebec, the Prairies and West Coast.

The four top management jobs open for bids are being offered executive types from "outside" corporations.

The response from executive suites in business and industry is described as heavy and "very encouraging."

Encouraging, officials explain, because it demonstrates an increasing interest by managerial professionals in public service careers.

One highly-placed federal administrator suggested that as business and industry become more and more "giantized" through mergers, they becoming increasingly impersonal and less attractive to their executives.

Increasingly then, "outside" management men are turning to the federal public service for more rewarding careers.

Needed by the post office are executives with special skills in, as the department describes them:

- "Management improvement" at an annual $23,500.
- "Productivity" at $23,500.
- "Senior financing" at $23,500.

Amateurs need not apply, hints the post office, suggesting applicants should now be making nothing less than $17,000.

experience in cost-analysis and Bidding for these special skills, the post office lists among requirements experience in cost-analysis and "profit-planning."

The post office, Kierans previously has explained, now is out to make a little instead of losing a lot of money.

There is an annual $450,000,000 budget and a staff of 48,000 with which the new management men are expected to work their executive wonders.

Where does "profit" come into postal operations?

"In the area," it was explained, "where our managers sit down with our biggest customers and work out a pay-service deal to our mutual benefit."

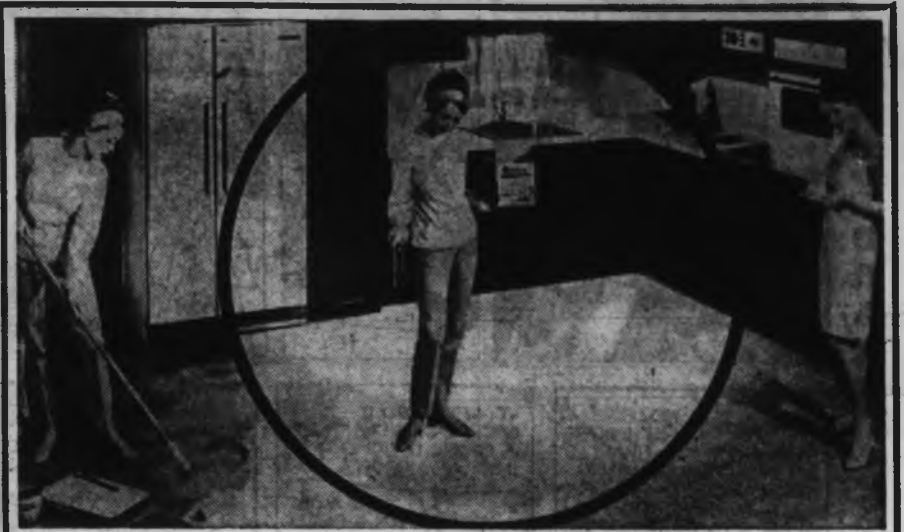

SPECIAL CUSTOMERS

There already has been talk in Parliament of these plans for something very special for what the post office calls its "big customers."

And parliamentarians, Liberals as well as opposition members have suggested that Postmaster General and Communications Minister Kierans should "sort out his priorities," and before catering to his "big customers" do something to improve service to his "small consumers," the millions of taxpayers up and down every street in the land.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Parliamentary Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield Tuesday defended the Quebec government's treatment of the English-speaking minority in the province.

In a question-and-answer session with students at the University of Windsor, the Progressive Conservative party head said Canadians in other provinces should not adopt a "holier-than-thou attitude" towards Quebec.

"We should start asking ourselves how many other provinces have equalled Quebec in its treatment of a minority," Stanfield said.

He said the Liberal government is "putting far too much importance on defining rights" and not enough stress on the people's ability to exercise those rights.

Distant Dishes Rattled By Walloping Test Blast

Collected Los Angeles Times Service

LOS ANGELES — A hydrogen atomic blast with the wallop of a strong earthquake was detonated under the Nevada desert Tuesday, rattling dishes and swiveling chandeliers as far away as Los Angeles and Salt Lake City.

The blast was equal to 800,000 tons of TNT and reportedly was the third largest ever set off at the Nevada test site 115 miles from Las Vegas.

Observers watching on closed-circuit television said the earth at Ground Zero jumped 15 feet when the device was set off.

Pictures taken from a helicopter showed the earth bulging

upward and a series of cracks 50 to 70 feet wide appearing around the edges of the bulge. As the ground settled back the cracks disappeared.

The Atomic Energy Commission reported no radioactive dust or gas had been vented into the air.

James Brube, California Institute of Technology professor and supervisor of the seismograph there, reported the magnitude of the shock as 6 on the Richter scale said aftershocks will continue for several days.

They will be too weak to be felt without the seismograph, however he said.

A Magnitude 6 earthquake is strong enough to do considerable damage but no damage was reported. Residents of older buildings in Beatty, Nev., 30 miles from the site, were evacuated as a precaution.

In Los Angeles the blast was described as differing from an earthquake in not having the characteristic rolling motion of a distant quake.

"It was more of a sudden shock followed by a vibration," one man said.

At the test site a plywood shack 30 feet from Ground Zero was knocked several feet off the ground but fell back apparently unharmed.

There was no damage at Las

'The time has come to end this war'

35,000 Pulling Out

Troops Sorry About Timing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon declared "the time has come to end this war" and announced Tuesday that at least 35,000 more United States troops will be withdrawn from South Vietnam by Dec. 15. The number could go higher.

Draft Halt?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House indicated Tuesday President Nixon is considering suspending the military draft, at least for a time. Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said the idea had been talked about from time to time but he declined to confirm or deny that it was a likely possibility in the near future.

The new pullout will bring to 60,000 the number of American forces removed since Nixon became president and drop U.S. strength in Vietnam to the lowest point in 22 months.

The withdrawal begins immediately, the White House said. Most of the forces pulled out will be ground units rather than air or naval, and half of them combat troops.

NEW STRATEGY

Nixon's announcement, which he called a "significant step," came as the White House said it is possible that North Vietnam—recovering from the death of President Ho Chi Minh—may be ready to adopt a new strategy in the stalemated Paris peace negotiations.

White House sources said they are not predicting which way Hanoi may go—toughen its war stance or show signs of realistic negotiating—but said the U.S. position is flexible.

In Saigon, South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu described the decision a sign that the South Vietnamese army is growing stronger.

But U.S. soldiers who have fought alongside the South Vietnamese army sharply disagreed. The South Vietnamese, they said, cannot fill the vacuum caused by U.S. troop withdrawals.

LITTLE SURPRISE

A U.S. officer who has worked for 10 months in the Mekong Delta area, now defended entirely by government troops, said:

But troops questioned at random in Saigon showed little surprise at the U.S. president's decision. Most appeared unexcited by the news and one, who asked

$50,000 Cabinet Warrant

Extra Outlay Paid Pre-Election Ads

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

Trade Minister Waldo Skilling confirmed Tuesday that a special warrant for $50,000 approved by the cabinet Sept. 11 but only made public Monday was to cover advertising expenses prior to the Aug. 27 election.

The minister said his department handles advertising expenses for a number of government departments, and added he believes the warrant allowing the advertising and publicity budget from $75,000 to $125,000 is to cover the cost of explaining the government's stand on pollution control.

Prior to the election, a series of newspaper ads appeared over the name of the health department, and jointly on behalf of the health, water resources and municipal affairs departments.

Mr. Skilling said the money authorized by cabinet is owed to the Vancouver advertising firm of Gordon Rowntree and Co. Ltd., which placed the government ads in newspapers.

He added that he doesn't believe there will be further special warrants required to cover the cost of ads run before the election to publicize the homeowner grant, B.C. parity bonds, human rights and the workmen's compensation programs.

Opposition parties criticized the newspaper ads placed by government departments before the election as political propaganda.

RED SMITH

When Wellington Mara said it was between 3 and 6 a.m. Friday that he decided to fire Allie Sherman, a thoughtful observer of the New York professional football scene was startled. "I thought," he said, "that only Joe Namath made decisions at that hour."

Allie got the word later in the morning. How did he take it? "I don't think he felt good," Mara said. "I think he felt like MacArthur when he was relieved of his command and told he had to go back to the Pentagon." Presumably, Wellington felt like Harry Truman.

Viewed as a period in history, the Sherman Era is a study in contrasts, and it is susceptible to varied interpretations. Allie succeeded Jim Lee Howell as head coach of the Giants after the 1964 season, and the team he inherited from Jim Lee topped the Eastern Conference of the National League in 1961, 1962, and 1963, losing twice to the Green Bay Packers and once to the Chicago Bears in playoffs for the league championship.

Riding high, Sherman told Wellington Mara that he had to have security or else. Wellington, newly installed in command of the family enterprise, was in a bind. Rather than face a showdown with a winning coach, he gave Allie a ten-year contract that still has five years to run. Presumably, Sherman will work it out in some capacity other than coach.

For Allie Sherman, security and adversity arrived together. In 1964 the Giants plunged from first to last place, winning two of 14 games. In 1965 they were worse, winning one of 14. In 1966, 1967, and 1968 they achieved a bovine mediocrity, winning seven and losing seven each year. It is possible, however, to describe Allie's record in more flattering terms, provided you regard a 7-7 season as a "winning year."

"If overall achievement is considered the criteria for measuring a pro coach's abilities," the Giants' 1969 roster says with a fine disregard for Greek grammar, "Allie Sherman must rank with the top mentors in the game... six winning years out of eight."

Obviously, it all depends on where you stand. If you're an employee of the Giants, it was six winning years out of eight. If you're a fan, it was three good years and five dismal ones. And in the meantime, the Jets came on to take charge, reducing the Old Guard to second-class citizenship in the town the Old Guard used to own. Was that horse-whipping by the Jets on Aug. 17 the straw that broke the camel's back?

"I don't think there was any straw," Wellington Mara said, "or any camel. I think we lost too many football games."

Mara denied that there was any connection between the players' meeting following Thursday night's defeat by the Pittsburgh Steelers and his decision to change coaches. Maybe there wasn't, but the meeting and the decision had the same cause. The players met because they felt that after five defeats in five exhibition games it was time to do something. For the same reason, Mara did something.

Will the team get better results with Alex Webster in charge? Probably not right away, but in the long run the change may prove beneficial. The opinion, here, not recently arrived at, is that Allie Sherman's grasp of football techniques is as firm as anybody's and his understanding of human relationships sorely deficient.

To put it in other words, he understands football but not people. He suffers from a basic suspicion of independent thinkers. He surrounds himself with yes men, and he is quick to assign players to the doghouse for reasons that are frequently obscure. Tucker Frederickson is only the most recent in a long line of tenants in Allie's kennel.

It is hoped and believed that Alex Webster will not be handicapped by similar psychological difficulties. Big Red is a solid, steady-going sort who was a bona fide star with the Giants in their winning years, stayed close to the game as a radio commentator after his retirement as a player, and had two years as backfield coach before this chance came to move up.

Unfortunately, he has a name that fits comfortably into the lyric which has been No. 1 on the hit parade at Yankee Stadium these years. "Goodbye, Alex" seems just as nearly as "Goodbye, Allie." Too bad Webster wasn't christened Montmorency or Agamemnon.

However, there is confidence here that the choiristers will fall silent, for a time at least. Even if Alex Webster's Giants lose as consistently as Allie Sherman's Giants have done, the new coach won't catch all the blame. The fans will reason that he inherited somebody else's mess and they will be patient.

Lions to Start Orange Bowl Star Tonight

VANCOUVER (CP) — Coach Jim Champion is turning to a rookie halfback from the University of Kansas in hopes of lighting a victory spark in his British Columbia Lions when they meet Edmonton Eskimos tonight in a key game between the tail-end clubs of the Western Football Conference.

Dennis Shabikin, five-foot-nine and 180 pounds, is expected to start in place of Leroy Sledge or Charlie Brown, who is bothered with a slight leg injury.

Shabikin, voted the outstanding player in the Orange Bowl game last season, has impressed Champion in practice with his ability to hit into a hole and drive for extra yardage.

"It looks like he can go all the way for you," said Champion. "He's faster with the ball than Brown."

Brown, who in two games with the Lions gained 101 yards in 20 carries, has outstanding speed but prefers to finesse his way around tacklers instead of driving through them.

At the University of Kansas

last year, Shabikin beat out bigger backs because of his hard running.

Both the Lions and Eskimos badly need a win in tonight's contest if they are to have much hope of overhauling Winnipeg Blue Bombers for the third and last playoff spot.

With the clubs moving into the second half of their 16-game schedule, the western conference has turned into a race between Saskatchewan Roughriders and Calgary Stampeders for first place. Winnipeg is third, with five points from two wins and a tie in nine games, followed by Edmonton with four points in eight games and Lions bringing up the rear with one victory in eight starts.

The Lions meet the Eskimos three times during the second half of the schedule and meet

Winnipeg twice. The Eskimos, who have already defeated Winnipeg twice in three meetings are finished with the Bombers in regular-season play.

Champion feels the Lions will have a good chance at a playoff spot provided they can win at least two of the three games against Edmonton and two more against Winnipeg.

Giants Climb to First Place As Marichal Baffles Braves

Right-hander Juan Marichal continued his Candlestick Park mastery Tuesday night baffling Atlanta Braves on four hits and pitching San Francisco Giants into first place in the National League's West Division with a 2-0 victory.

Marichal, with 19 wins in 29 decisions, boosted his home-park record to 13-1 with his eight shutout of the season, tops in the league. He has allowed only one run in his last 45 innings at home.

The win gave Giants a one-half game lead over the Braves. Successive singles by Ken Henderson, Jack Hight and Hall Llanier produced the first run in the second inning while a single by Tito Fuentes and Willie Mays' double scored the other in the fifth.

Los Angeles Dodgers rallied for two runs in the bottom of the ninth inning and nipped Cincinnati Reds, 2-1, in the first game of a doubleheader to edge past the Reds at least temporarily.

The clubs were tied 2-2 after nine innings in the nightcap.

Houston Astros fell farther off the pace when they were beaten, 8-1, by San Diego Padres who started five rookies. Nate Colbert clouted his 22nd home run of the season to spark a five-run first-inning rally.

In the east, New York Mets were finally stopped — not by rivals but by rain. While Mets' game against St. Louis was washed out, second-place Chicago Cubs picked up half-a-game by edging Montreal Expos, 5-4. Home runs by veteran Billy Williams, his 18th, and 19-year-old Oscar Gamble, his first as a major leaguer, were the big blows.

In the American League, Minnesota Twins moved closer to clinching the pennant in the west and Harmon Killebrew zeroed in on the league home-run lead.

Killebrew slammed his 44th homer of the season with two mates aboard and the Twins went on to defeat Oakland Athletics, 11-3, as Jan Perry pitched his 19th win.

Killebrew was six-for-six with four homers and 12 runs batted in in the last three games against Athletics, he has hit 11 homers and driven in 34 runs.

The win shot Twins 10 games ahead of Oakland and reduced their magic number to six. Any combination of Minnesota victories and Oakland losses to falling six puts Twins in the playoffs.

McNALLY TURNS HITTER Baltimore's Dave McNally, batting .071 with six hits for the season, sent Washington's Frank Howard to the fence to catch his line drive in the second inning, doubled in the fifth and drove in the only run of the game with a bloop single in the sixth as Orioles shaded the Senators, 2-1.

McNally's 19th win. Orioles have already clinched the eastern division title.

Nanaimo Within Win Of Canadian Crown

MONTREAL (CP) — Nanaimo Luckies capitalized on a series of costly third-period infractions by Caughnawaga Indians Tuesday to defeat the Quebec team, 20-15, and take a 3-4 lead in their best-of-seven Canadian Senior Lacrosse championship final.

The clubs meet again tonight in the suburban Chateaugay arena. Luckies won the first two matches by scores of 13-12 and 20-15 in games in which the hapless Indians piled up penalties in the final periods.

Bill Russell paced the Luckies with five goals and Don Stephenson scored three.

Charlie Hardy, Tom Blackburn, Bill Thomson and Ken Mautman each added two goals.

Walter Goodleaf led the Caughnawaga attack with three goals. Joe Corlette, Lewis Delisle, Lawrence Martin and Irvin Goodleaf each scored two.

Four of the Indians' 11 penalties came in the third period, including a misconduct to Claude Poirault at 17:12.

They outshot the Indians, 64-51.

Registration Date Will Be Enforced

COURTENAY — The final date of acceptance of player registration forms, was the prime topic of discussion when directors of the Vancouver Island Amateur Basketball Association met here on the weekend.

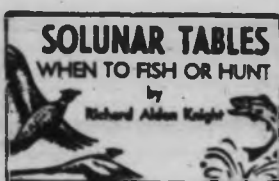

Directors agreed that the final date for registration, Dec. 15, will be rigidly enforced. Island registrar Mrs. R. McKellar will not accept forms date stamped later than midnight of that date.

A lengthy proposal for play-off and tournament play, covering several problems which have arisen in past playing seasons was presented by the president, Cedric Trueman. Directors agreed in principle and the proposals will be put before play-off meeting to be held in Nanaimo on Dec. 7.

Several proposals for consideration by the BCABA meeting in Vancouver in mid-October won direct-vote approval and will be put to the B.C. body by Trueman.

No change in registration form costs was made but the matter is dependent upon costs charged by the B.C. body to the island group.

Elderly Woman Dies

COURTENAY — Mrs. Lilian May Mooney, 62, of Fanny Bay, died Monday after being involved in an accident on the Island Highway a few hours earlier.

She was walking along the road near Pacific Village, south of Fanny Bay, when she was involved in an accident with a car driven by Olof Herrdin of Courtenay. His wife and another female passenger were in the car which was travelling north, said RCMP.

Mrs. Mooney was taken to Cumberland Hospital where she died at 9:30 p.m.

Coroner Tom Menzies said that an inquest would be held. There have been three other recent road deaths in the Courtenay Valley.

An inquest into the death of Ronald Febernst, who died in a car accident July 28, has been set for Sept. 23 and no date has been arranged yet for an inquest into the death of John Kilz of Port Alberni who died Aug. 24.

One was held recently for Glen Mitchell who was killed in an accident July 2.

Nothing Found Yet

CAMPBELL RIVER — Campbell River RCMP said Tuesday that there was still no trace of an Island Airlines aircraft which disappeared early Sept. 19 with three people aboard.

The aircraft was flying from Campbell River to Kamloops.

Missing and presumed dead are the pilot John Bryson Bouter, 24, Campbell River, Kent Nicholson, 24, of Courtenay and Richard Thomson, 26, of Nanaimo.

Police said that poor weather had hindered the search and soundings in Georgia Strait for the Cessna 336.

Elk Falls Mill

First Aid Man Retires

CAMPBELL RIVER — Leale Hamilton retires this month after spending 11 years as first aid guard in the industrial relations department at Elk Falls Co. Ltd. mill.

His position will be taken by Lloyd Hawley, who has been employed by the company since February, 1967, as patrolman and relief first aid guard.

A new daily combined newspaper production record, for No. 1 and No. 2 paper machines, of 826 tons has been set at the mill. This topples the old record of 818 tons set on Aug. 21, 1968.

The company is sponsoring two 10-week classes in St. John Ambulance senior first aid course.

Tuesday evening classes will commence on Sept. 23 at Willow Point Hall, with Ray Burkell as instructor and Thursday evening classes will start Sept. 25 in Campbell River Fire Hall, with Dick Lee as instructor.

Anyone 16 years and over would attend the classes, said an official. Crown Zellerbach employees who successfully complete the course will qualify for a fee refund under the company's outside education program.

Nanaimo

SPCA Chief Replies To Attack

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO — Mrs. Margaret Foley, president of Nanaimo SPCA issued a statement Tuesday in reply to comments made by vice-president Lorne McLaughlin Monday when he accused the executive of keeping branch affairs secret.

Mr. McLaughlin claimed that the executive had kept information from the public and membership. He added that he had been asked to sign a secrecy agreement when he first took office in March.

In her statement, Mrs. Foley said: "I have been asked to comment on statements made by Lorne McLaughlin, vice-president of this branch. 'I can only say that if he, as an officer of the branch, that he is always at liberty to resign and that insofar as the branch is concerned, it is disappointing and most regrettable that a member of the executive of the branch should think so little of the welfare of the animals, which is after all the prime concern of the branch and the society, that he would attempt to undermine the working of the branch and the confidence of the general public in it by taking the action that he has."

Mrs. Foley declined to add to her statement when asked why the SPCA had been refused funds by United Appeal.

On Tuesday Mr. McLaughlin said: "I'm not going to quit... I'm just starting to fight... This was why I was elected — to represent the membership. I'd be just as well out of the SPCA altogether if I didn't do something about what's going on."

"As far as interfering with care of animals we're on the business-end of it — not care of the animals. I'm not complaining about or interfering with care of the animals. I'm concerned with mismanagement of the SPCA branch," he said.

Appeal Refusal Queried

"These problems pre-dated my election by more than a year. If the public confidence had not already been undermined, then why had the United Appeal refused the SPCA's request for support for the second consecutive year?"

"If the executive is so concerned for the care of animals, then why did they take out the two-way radios from the trucks? Instead, last night (Monday) they agreed to replace them by paying $12 a month toward telephone answering services which are good but not as quick as radio."

"An injured animal shouldn't be expected to wait for someone to call an answering service but the radio-equipped trucks are almost always close to the driver," Mr. McLaughlin said.

He said two small imported vans were to be bought by the branch as a result of Monday night's executive meeting.

The vans, he said, would cost $3,349.50 and branch operating expenses would result in a total of about $5,000, to be borrowed from the British Columbia parent body. The loan was necessitated because the city grant of $4,230 plus 50 per cent of fines was insufficient.

The loan would be repaid at $50 a month which would include seven per cent interest.

On Monday night, director Ernie Cleave said he was also concerned about the radios. He said that, on one hand, the society claimed to cut costs by retiring functioning equipment on claims that maintenance costs were too high. Then the society committed itself to purchasing two vans which would be too small to do the job properly.

Radio Plea Rejected

"I put up a strong plea to re-institute the radio-base station but I was voted down. We're forced to accept their word when they say the radios are too expensive because they won't back up their claims with figures. I know from my own experience, because my base-station is the same as their equipment, that the radios don't cost that much to maintain. It's nonsense..." he said.

Mr. McLaughlin said he had, for three consecutive meetings requested that records be produced.

"I didn't even ask Monday night, because I knew they wouldn't be there, and they weren't," he said.

A. J. (Slim) Pritchard, immediate past vice-president, supported Mr. McLaughlin in an interview Tuesday night.

He said the first year the SPCA request for a United Appeal grant was refused because the branch had been operating an "animal procuring business."

He said animals were being sold, as pets, at a profit through the branch.

"I can say Mr. McLaughlin's only started to find things out about the branch. The animals are not the prime concern but a personal feud has been maintained by executive members at the expense of the animals," said Mr. Pritchard.

He claimed that several times animals were left untended while former inspector was removed from the job for which no reason was given — and only one man was left to care for the animals.

Previously four people were required.

Mr. Robertson was reinstated after a Labor Relations Board hearing but he is currently on suspension.

"If the branch spent the money they are spending on courts and wasted wages on animal care, everyone would be satisfied. But that money was spent unconstitutionally because the executive never passed on its expenditure," said Mr. Pritchard.

Controversial Duncan Crosswalk

Pupils, Teachers Boost Safety

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN — Through the co-operation of students at Duncan elementary school, teachers and Cowichan School Board, the safety of smaller children who walk to Knowhemun elementary school has been assured.

About a week ago, parents of the young children complained about unsafe conditions of a crosswalk at Boundary Road and Government Street and quick action resulted in a temporary solution until a new crosswalk has been installed.

Teachers from Knowhemun school will guard the crosswalk until the end of September and then, starting in October, Grade 7 students from Duncan elementary school will provide safety patrols mornings and afternoons.

Robert Moss, director of elementary instruction, said Tuesday: "The staff of Knowhemun elementary school has generously agreed to continue the patrol until the end of this month."

* * *

"It should then be possible for Duncan Elementary School to assume responsibility for patrolling the intersection until the completion of the new crossing."

Mayor Jim Quaife of Duncan said the provincial government would call for tenders for the improvement of Government Street as soon as the city had obtained the necessary land from people living in the Cliffs Road area.

The improvements will include road widening and installation of gutters and sidewalks.

A warning light is to be installed at the controversial pedestrian crossing. It is anticipated that work will commence at the intersection and the crosswalk can be used before December.

Mayor Quaife said: "I am very pleased about the outcome and I would like to commend teachers at Knowhemun and Duncan elementary schools and the students of the latter who will be guarding the crossing next month."

* * *

"It has been very fine co-operation and I would like to congratulate all concerned."

The reconstruction of that section of Government Street will cost about $100,000. The city's share will be about $22,000.

CREW CHECKS equipment in rescue helicopter during Gold River visit, above, while, below, big craft starts

Photostory by BETTY MACMILLAN

GOLD RIVER — Gold River residents had a chance to see a search and rescue helicopter at work during the weekend.

Helicopters frequently visit the town to aid the highways department and forestry officials, landing and taking off near the Gold River Chalet or the shopping centre.

But when the search and rescue craft landed across from the public safety building and a crew of five red-capped officers emerged, a crowd of adults and children soon gathered around to watch events.

Capt. Al Winters said they were using a CH 113 Labrador, the biggest in the Canadian Forces, from 442

Search and Rescue at CFB Comox.

He said it held 25 plus a crew of five.

A spokesman for Gold River RCMP said the team had been called in to search for a car and driver which were reported missing. The man drove to Campbell River for an appointment with a doctor. He kept his appointment but failed to arrive back home. RCMP concentrated the search on Upper Campbell River lake where, it was thought, the car might have plunged into the water.

On Monday police said the man had been located in Vancouver.

A spokesman said that when someone was missing between Gold River and Campbell River, they had to think of the lakes "and a helicopter can easily spot a car under water."

In the weekend incident, the Campbell River RCMP requested the aid of the helicopter and Const. Drewe Nelson of Campbell River highway patrol accompanied the searchers.

B.C. Indian Chiefs To Discuss Policy

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three B.C. Indian organizations have formed a joint committee to hold a conference of Indian chiefs about the federal government's proposed new Indian policy.

Plans for the conference were announced Tuesday by Don Moses, president of the North American Brotherhood of B.C. and co-ordinator of a committee composed of the Brotherhood, the B.C. Indian Homemakers Association and the Southern Vancouver Island Tribal Federation.

Mr. Moses said the conference will probably be held Nov. 16-22 in Kamloops. Chiefs of 188 bands will be invited. The conference was proposed by Chief Dennis Alphonse of Duncan band.

But Not Immediately

Three More Ferries Will Be 'Stretched'

By IAN STREET

The provincial government announced its intention Tuesday to call tenders for the "stretching" of three more ferries, but a highways department spokesman later indicated it might take up to three years to complete the job.

A small newspaper advertisement appearing for the first time Tuesday, under the heading Notice to Shipyards, said tenders were being called for the lengthening by 84 feet each of the Queen of Saanich, Queen of Victoria and Queen of Vancouver.

ONLY ONE

Department officials said later, however, that only one of the vessels — the Queen of Victoria — would be converted this winter at a cost expected to be over $2,000,000. The job will take until spring, and only one ferry at a time can be taken out of service.

All available ferries. It is expected, will be pressed into service next summer to meet the tourist rush, which means a late fall 1970 start at earliest on the second of the new series of conversions.

The third stretching operation would therefore be carried out starting late in 1971.

CAR SPACES

The Queen of Esquimalt was cut in half last winter and a new 84-foot midships section welded into place. The stretching operation added 55 new car spaces, boosting the total capacity to more than 200 cars, and providing room for 200 more passengers for a total of 1,200.

The job was done by Burrard Dry Dock, North Vancouver, for $2,200,000.

During the election campaign, Premier Bennett announced that five ferries on the mainland-Vancouver Island run would all be stretched in the near future to meet the demands of increased peak traffic.

'INTENTION NOTICE'

A department spokesman said Tuesday that the newspaper advertising, which mentioned tenders for conversion of three vessels, would be opened at 2 p.m. Sept. 25. He said that in the case of two ships, it could be better described as a "notice of intention" by the government.

The conversions, officials said, would be the same as the one carried out on the Queen of Esquimalt last winter, including the installation of sewage holding tanks. It was disclosed last week that the Queen of Esquimalt's holding tanks are dumped in deep water in the Strait of Georgia on each trip rather than being emptied into sewers at the terminals.

Ferry Bids Planned By Yarrows

Yarrows Ltd. shipyards will bid for two of the three ferry-stretching jobs soon to be put up for tender by the B.C. government, a company official said Tuesday.

General manager John Wallace said Yarrows was "very definitely" interested in the job and would be preparing tenders.

He said there was a "very good" chance that some of the work would come to Victoria. Yarrows is at present working on two small barges and one large one.

* * *

Meanwhile, Boilermakers Union business agent Neil Hindle welcomed the government's announcement that it would be calling tenders soon, and said he was "happy to see the government is putting out the bids on a systematic basis."

Mr. Wallace said the jobs, if won by Yarrows, would mean work for about 200 men. Mr. Hindle said this would probably not mean any new hiring, but would give "continuity" to the workers now employed. It would give stability and greater productivity to these trades, he said.

Mr. Hindle said he hoped the Yarrows bids would be "hard" ones.

Walker Killed By Rolling Car

NANAIMO — A former

Victoria man has died in Nanaimo Regional Hospital after a parked car slipped its brakes, striking him and his companion Monday.

He is Alex McLellan, 56, of 60 Bryden, Nanaimo who was formerly of 1043 Linden, Victoria. Mike Kronyk of Metrol Drive, Wellington, was discharged from hospital.

The two men were walking away from Mr. Kronyk's vehicle, parked in the 3300 block of Departure Bay Road when it rolled toward them. It struck both men and Mr. McLellan was pinned beneath it.

SOFT GROUND

Soft ground was credited with saving Mr. Kronyk's life as it cushioned him from injury. Mr. McLellan died at about 4 a.m. Tuesday — about 13 hours after the accident.

Mrs. Gunter Lydwig of 385 Departure Bay Road said she saw the incident.

"It happened right in front of my front door," she said.

"They parked and got out but I didn't pay much attention to them because I first thought they were salesmen. I went back to sweeping my steps."

'THEY FELL'

"Then something made me look up — I don't know what. I saw the car coming at them. It sort of pushed them into a garden and then they fell."

"I grabbed my little daughter, Leona, and threw her out of the way toward the front door. The two men were pinned underneath the car," she said.

"One man was not pinned to badly. He told me to call the ambulance and he began to crawl from underneath. We got a jack — a bumper jack — and started to lift the car. But I saw that the jack was leaning over and I said we should stop. I was afraid it would slip."

HEAVY JACK

"We couldn't pull the other man out because it hurt him too much so we had to wait for the ambulance."

"The men in the ambulance had a heavier jack and they lifted the car and took the man to hospital where he died," she said.

Mr. McLellan was living temporarily at Bryden Street. He is survived by his wife, three sons, a brother, two sisters and three grandchildren. Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

Wreckers Start Work

DUNCAN — The wrecker's hammer has started to demolish the old King's Daughters' Hospital on Hospital Hill.

Cowichan District Hospital Board awarded the $4,333 job to Gordon H. Smith of Victoria after three bids were considered. Completion date is early December.

The hospital began operating in the early part of the century but it was abandoned when the new Cowichan district hospital opened a few years ago.

Cumberland Seeks Better Road

CUMBERLAND — Cumberland council is to ask the highways department to upgrade Bevan Road, which leads to Pigeon Lake dump, used jointly by Cumberland and Courtenay.

The decision was taken this week when aldermen also agreed to ask Courtenay to support the move and decided to send copies of correspondence to Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell and Health Minister Ralph Loftmark.

It was agreed that the dump should be open seven days a week between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

* * *

Office hours at the municipal hall were also changed. In future the office will be on a five-day week basis. Public office hours will be from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. The office will be closed Saturday and Sunday.

A tender for construction of 1,634 linear feet of sidewalk was awarded to Courtenay Cement Works and Paving who submitted a quotation of $5,200. It was the lowest tender received.

Sidewalk construction was a topic that caused some discussion by aldermen who agreed that the present method of constructing so many feet of sidewalk each year is too long a process. An investigation is to be made into some method, possibly a local improvement tax, which would enable all sidewalks in the boundaries to be finished at one time. A report is expected to be given at a later date.

* * *

Jack Skochani, who quoted for demolition of the Recreational Institute Building, was given permission to proceed. However, tenders for purchase of two pool tables, which are in the building, will be called separately.

Upgrading of Allen's Lake water supply will be taken. The scheme includes draining the lake through three-four inch clean-out valves to the level of the intake construction and installation of an intake cone and clearing around the intake and utilization of the surge method developed by Associated Engineering.

On the recommendation of administrator Bob Grivel, a new council committee structure was adopted. There will be four basic committees — finance and public works, led by Pete Cameron; recreation and community service, with sub-heads of health, parks and libraries led by Jim Watson; sanitation and waste removal, to include sewers, garbage dump, waste removal, garbage collection and storm drains all led by Jim Weir regional district and water led by Andrew Harvie.

Who Can Match Quebec In Minority Treatment?

- Accused riot leader out on bail. Page 16

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Parliamentary Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield Tuesday defended the Quebec government's treatment of the English-speaking minority in the province.

In a question-and-answer session with students at the University of Windsor, the Progressive Conservative party head said Canadians in other provinces should not adopt a "holier-than-thou attitude" towards Quebec.

"We should start asking ourselves how many other provinces have equalled Quebec in its treatment of a minority," Stanfield said.

He said the Liberal government is "putting far too much importance on defining rights" and not enough stress on the people's ability to exercise those rights.

Dishes Rattled Far Away By Walloping Test Blast

LOS ANGELES — A hydrogen atomic blast with the wallop of a strong earthquake was detonated under the Nevada desert Tuesday, rattling dishes and swinging chandeliers as far away as Las Vegas and Salt Lake City.

The blast was equal to 800,000 tons of TNT and reportedly was the third largest ever set off at the Nevada test site 115 miles from Las Vegas.

Observers watching on closed-circuit television said the earth at ground zero jumped 15 feet when the device was set off.

Pictures taken from a helicopter showed the earth bulging

upward and a series of cracks 50 to 70 feet wide appearing around the edges of the bulge. As the ground settled back the cracks disappeared.

The Atomic Energy Commission reported no radioactive dust or gas had been vented into the air.

James Brune, California Institute of Technology professor and supervisor of the seismograph there, reported the magnitude of the shock as 6 on the Richter scale said aftershocks will continue for several days. They will be too weak to be felt without the seismograph, however, he said.

A magnitude 6 earthquake is strong enough to do considerable damage but no damage was reported. Residents of older buildings in Beatty, Nev., 30 miles from the site, were evacuated as a precaution.

In Los Angeles the blast was described as differing from an earthquake in not having the characteristic rolling motion of a distant quake.

"It was more of a sudden shock followed by a vibration," one man said. At the test site a plywood shack 30 feet from ground zero was knocked several feet off the ground but fell back apparently undamaged.

There was no damage at Las

VANCOUVER (CP) — Students and faculty in the stormy department of political science, sociology and anthropology at Simon Fraser University decided Tuesday to conduct a "strike vote" next Monday.

The move was approved by 400 students and 14 faculty members after a three-hour meeting at the university. The department has 1,700 students and 26 faculty members.

The PSA department is involved in controversy about job tenure for faculty members, among other things, and has been placed under indefinite five-man trusteeship by the SFU administration.

"The time has come when we've had enough harassment and intimidation from the administration," the meeting was told by Nordecal Briemberg, former head of the department.

There was no immediate comment from SFU's administration.

Prof. Briemberg's re-election as chairman of the department by students and faculty members is another issue. Dale Sullivan, dean of arts, has refused to recognize the re-election.

Meanwhile, Tuesday's meeting decided each student and faculty member will have one vote in departmental decisions during the trusteeship. Students outnumber faculty nearly 66 to 1.

35,000 PULLING OUT

Troops Sorry About Timing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon declared "the time has come to end this war" and announced Tuesday that at least 35,000 more United States troops will be withdrawn from South Vietnam by Dec. 15. The number could go higher.

Draft Halt?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House indicated Tuesday President Nixon is considering suspending the military draft at least for a time. Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said the idea had been talked about from time to time but he declined to confirm or deny that it was a likely possibility in the near future.

The new pullout will bring to 60,000 the number of American forces removed since Nixon became president and drop U.S. strength in Vietnam to the lowest point in 22 months.

The withdrawal begins immediately, the White House said. Most of the forces pulled out will be ground units rather than air or naval, and half of them combat types.

NEW STRATEGY

Nixon's announcement, which he called a "significant step," came as the White House said it is possible that North Vietnam—recovering from the death of President Ho Chi Minh—may be ready to adopt a new strategy in the stalemated Paris peace negotiations.

White House sources said they are not predicting which way Hanoi may go—tougher its war stance or show signs of realistic negotiating—but said the U.S. position is flexible.

In Saigon, South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu described the decision a sign that the South Vietnamese army is growing stronger.

But U.S. soldiers who have fought alongside the South Vietnamese army sharply disagreed. The South Vietnamese, they said, cannot fill the vacuum caused by U.S. troop withdrawals.

LITTLE SURPRISE

A U.S. officer who has worked for 10 months in the Mekong Delta area, now defended entirely by government troops, said: "They've turned the delta into a testing ground for the South Vietnamese—it's a do-or-die situation—and they're just not going to do it."

But troops questioned at random in Saigon showed little surprise at the U.S. president's decision. Most appeared unexcited by the news and one, who asked

'Drop by Drop' Inspires Hope

PARIS (UPI) — The Vietnam communists poured scorn on the new American troop withdrawal Tuesday but coupled it with a phrase which qualified diplomatic officials said could be significant.

The Viet Cong's "Provisional Revolutionary Government" scoffed at the plan to pull 35,000 more troops out as "drop by drop" withdrawal.

The possible significance of the "drop by drop" phrase, according to the qualified diplomatic officials who declined to be identified, was that it appeared to be the first communist admission that earlier U.S. troops withdrawals had, in fact, taken place.

DEMAND REPEATED

The spokesman for the Hanoi delegation immediately endorsed the Viet Cong statement, and repeated Hanoi's demand for immediate, complete and unconditional withdrawal of all U.S. troops.

The official Soviet news agency Tass Tuesday described as a "propaganda manoeuvre" Nixon's plans for the withdrawal.

The earlier so-called reduction of U.S. troop strength in South Vietnam by 25,000 was regarded by the world public as a propaganda manoeuvre and an effort to deceive the world public opinion," said Tass.

EFFORT TO CALM

"Today's announcement about new reductions, as the previous one, is an effort to calm the American public opinion and to weaken demands all over the world for an end to the Vietnam war and withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Vietnam," said Tass.

In another Paris development, the North Vietnamese delegation agreed to meet four U.S. Air Force wives who want to know if their husbands are prisoners of war or dead.

QUICKLY LEFT

The four women, three from Dallas and the fourth from Fort Worth, Tex., went to the North Vietnamese headquarters in suburban Cholsy La Roi Tuesday but left again after 15 minutes inside.

A North Vietnamese spokesman said: "The four ladies

Taiwan Buying Reactor

OTTAWA (CP) — The Chinese Atomic Energy Council in Taiwan has contracted to buy a $35,000,000 nuclear research reactor from Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., it was announced Tuesday.

AECL and Canadian commercial firms will supply $28,000,000 worth of the equipment and materials for the reactor, similar to the research reactor Canada built co-operatively with India near Bombay for the Indian atomic energy department.

The deal with the Nationalist Chinese is the first commercial reactor sale by AECL since it assumed sole responsibility last year for export marketing of Canadian nuclear reactors.

PEACEFUL USE

The Chinese agreed, as a condition of the sale, to accept the safeguards of the International Atomic Energy Agency to ensure the installation is used only for peaceful purposes. The reactor is an improved version of the NRX reactor at Chalk River, Ont., and the Cirrus reactor at Bombay. It is a purely research tool and can be used for production of radioactive isotopes. It is not an electric power generating installation.

Hydro Strike?

$50,000 Cabinet Warrant

Extra Outlay Paid Pre-Election Ads

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

Trade Minister Walter Skillings confirmed Tuesday that a special warrant for $50,000 approved by the cabinet Sept. 11 but only made public Monday was to cover advertising expenses prior to the Aug. 27 election.

The minister said his department handles advertising expenses for a number of government departments, and added he believes the warrant of explaining the government's stand on pollution control.

Prior to the election, a series of newspaper ads appeared over the name of the health department, and jointly on behalf of the health, water resources and municipal affairs departments.

Mr. Skillings said the money authorized by cabinet is owed to the Vancouver advertising firm of Gordon Rowntree and Co. Ltd., which placed the government ads in newspapers.

He added that he doesn't believe there will be further special warrants required to cover the cost of ads run before the election to publicize the homeowner grant, B.C. parity bonds, human rights and the workmen's compensation programs.

Opposition parties criticized the newspaper ads placed by government departments before the election as political propaganda.

Hunter Finds Way—at Last

CHILLIWACK (CP) — John Stephenson, the wrong-way hunter, says he has finally learned his lesson.

Rescued after three days in the bush, he said he'll stay on the road next time he goes hunting.

And in case that doesn't work, he'll pack survival gear.

The 26-year-old steelworker from Whalley, in hospital with a suspected ankle fracture, explained Tuesday the reasons for his future care.

"I have been lost seven times in the last three years.

"Every time I have been out I got lost."

Marine Centre Might Land Here

By BILL STAVDAL

Victoria and Vancouver are prime sites for a major marine sciences centre which will be recommended soon to the Science Council of Canada by three of its researchers.

The men who will make the recommendation are in Victoria today to hear the views of the general public and specialists involved with the ocean.

STUDY GROUP

Together they form the science council's study group on marine science and technology, currently touring the east and west coasts while researching their report.

They said in Victoria on Tuesday evening that they have already made up their minds about the need for a large west coast marine sciences laboratory.

It would be distinct from the biological facility soon to be set up at Bamfield on Vancouver Island's west coast, said Dr. Dickie. The committee visited Bamfield last week.

"The laboratory would have a very geophysical aspect," said Dr. Stewart, mentioning oil exploration and mining as customers for the laboratory. He said the payoff for the fundamental research such as the proposed laboratory would carry out "is too far in the future and too uncertain to be of interest to industry."

Dr. Stewart said oceanography would be a major preoccupation of the laboratory. "In the long run, if we want to forecast weather beyond a few days, we have to know what's going on in the ocean," he said.

MUCH MORE

Dr. Dickie added that Canada needs to know much more about the productivity of the ocean.

The study committee will make recommendations on research priorities and spending to the Science Council. The council, a crown corporation, reports directly to the prime minister.

The three scientists currently are weighing the arguments for locating a laboratory at Vancouver and Victoria.

Vancouver has UBC's oceanography department, and there is "continuing pressure" to locate at Vancouver, said Dr. Stewart.

On the other hand, Victoria is nearer the open ocean, has cleaner water and has space in Esquimalt harbor, he noted.

Today at 2:30 p.m. the scientists will meet a six-man panel of Victorians at a public meeting at the Maritime Museum. They will debate with the panel and also answer questions from the floor.

Chipping Task In Store

Student Urges Firmness:

Appeasement of Radicals Spurs Campus Violence

A Vancouver university student urged Victoria businessmen Tuesday to raise their voices against universities which permit student and faculty radicalism.

The appeal came from John Cherrington, president of the University of British Columbia's debating society. He spoke to the Kiwanis Club of Victoria at the Empress Hotel.

"Show your concern for the way universities are being run," said Mr. Cherrington. "Express your disapproval of any appeasement of radical destroyers on campus."

Mr. Cherrington told the club that he spoke for "a good segment of the student population—students who are tired of the theorizing and the rabble-rousing, and who want to get on with their education."

The student said that legitimate grievances on campuses are being distorted by a radical minority.

"The evidence is clear that these so-called reformists have really one aim: to destroy, to break free of law, or order, to shun justice."

STAND URGED

"And those who naively sympathize with these individuals are being used as tools."

Mr. Cherrington asked when university administrators are going to take a stand against radicals.

"If their policy of appeasement which has been developing during the past few years continues, then we are simply inviting violence and upheaval," he said.

FACULTY CLUB

He recalled last winter's student occupations of the administration building at faculty club at UBC and the Simon Fraser University.

"If it is reactionary to be responsible, to respect certain values, to desire justice for those who disobey the rules, then I am proud to be reactionary," said Mr. Cherrington.

When these individuals use the university as a tool for protest, when they infringe upon the welfare of the hard-working students, when they harm or threaten the taxpayers' property, they have no rights to attend university and should be expelled.

MONEY SHORTAGE

Mr. Cherrington questioned the existence of a money shortage at B.C. campuses.

Grilse Towed South After Canada Hitch

Heading for San Francisco at 9 a.m. today in tow of ocean-going tug St. Anthony is HMCS Grilse, submarine which has been on loan to Canadian navy for eight years. She will be turned over to her owners, the U.S. Navy. Twenty men will comprise security watch on board, not enough to replace her. Submariners have been transferred to replacement, HMCS Rainbow, bought from U.S. government this year.

B.C. Plans to Stretch Three More Ferries

By IAN STREET
The provincial government announced its intention Tuesday to call tenders for the "stretching" of three more ferries, but a highways department spokesman later indicated it might take up to three years to complete the job.

A small newspaper advertisement appearing for the first time Tuesday, under the heading Notice to Shipyards, said tenders were being called for the lengthening, by 84 feet each, of the Queen of Saanich, Queen of Victoria and Queen of Vancouver.

ONLY ONE
Department officials said later, however, that only one of the vessels—the Queen of Victoria—would be converted this winter at a cost expected to be over $2,000,000. The job will take until spring, and only one ferry at a time can be taken out of service.

All available ferries, it is expected, will be pressed into service next summer to meet the tourist rush, which means a late fall 1970 start at earliest on the second of the new series of conversions.

The third stretching operation would therefore be carried out starting late in 1971.

CAR SPACES

The Queen of Esquimalt was cut in half last winter and a new 84-foot midships section welded into place. The stretching operation added 55 new car spaces, boosting the total capacity to more than 200 cars, and providing room for 200 more passengers for a total of 1,200.

The job was done by Burrard Dry Dock, North Vancouver, for $2,200,000.

During the election campaign, Premier Bennett announced that five ferries on the mainland-Vancouver Island run would all be stretched in the near future to meet the demands of increased peak traffic.

'INTENTION NOTICE'

A department spokesman said Tuesday that the newspaper advertising, which mentioned tenders for conversion of three vessels, would be opened at 2 p.m. Sept. 25. He said that in the case of two ships, it could be better described as a "notice of intention" by the government.

The conversions, officials said, would be the same as the one carried out on the Queen of Esquimalt last winter, including the installation of sewage holding tanks. It was disclosed last week that the Queen of Esquimalt's holding tanks were dumped in deep water in the Strait of Georgia on each trip rather than being emptied into sewers at the terminals.

Ferry Bids Earmarked By Yarrows

Yarrows Ltd. shipyards will bid for two of the three ferry-stretching jobs soon to be put up for tender by the B.C. government, a company official said Tuesday.

General manager John Wallace said Yarrows was "very definitely" interested in the job and would be preparing tenders.

He said there was a "very good" chance that some of the work would come to Victoria. Yarrows is at present working on two small barges and one large one.

Meanwhile, Boilermakers Union business agent Neil Hindle welcomed the government's announcement that it would be calling tenders soon, and said he was "happy to see the government is putting out the bids on a systematic basis."

Mr. Wallace said the jobs, if won by Yarrows, would mean work for about 200 men. Mr. Hindle said this would probably not mean any new hiring, but would give "continuity" to the workers now employed. It would give stability and greater productivity to these trades, he said.

Mr. Hindle said he hoped the Yarrows bids would be "hard" ones.

Planning Role Topic

Planning as a function of the regional board will be considered at its next meeting Wednesday, Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen said Tuesday from the Union of B.C. Municipalities conference at Kamloops.

The idea has been in the board's administrative machinery for well over a year. It has been studied by committee and subcommittee but no decision has been reached.

Municipalities have differed over the amount of control the board should have over the local councils and local planning.

ONLY GRANT

Spelling Tuesday at the conference Municipal Affairs Minister Don Campbell reminded Greater Victoria delegates that theirs was the only regional district with a planning board getting a provincial grant.

He also reminded them of notification received by the board six months ago, giving a year's notice of provincial intention to discontinue the grant.

"After March 1970 the regional board is on its own as regards planning."

He said provincial government had been working with the board on details of the proposed changes in letters patent, and he expected the region would have completed its part before next year.

California-Bound?

P & O Offers Cruise Starts Here

By DON GAIN

The P & O luxury liner Arcadia, which has passed Victoria many times on round-the-world cruises, will start stopping here on June 4 next summer.

The 30,000-ton ship will visit Victoria five times in the course of cruises to California and Alaska.

"Victoria is one of the greatest revenue-producing cities in Canada for us," Donald Palmer, Vancouver manager, said Tuesday when he announced next summer's cruises.

He said that in the past nine months, revenue from Victoria had increased 67 per cent.

Four Alaska cruises will originate in Vancouver next summer, and five California cruises in Victoria, each planned for 1,600 passengers, Mr. Palmer said.

The first voyage to Alaska will start May 27 in Vancouver. Ports of call are Juneau, Skagway, Glacier Bay and Sitka. Identical cruises will begin in Vancouver June 10, July 8 and July 22, arriving in Victoria June 15, July 16 and July 30.

The six-day California cruises start in Victoria June 4, calling at San Francisco, Los Angeles and returning to Vancouver June 10. Other California cruises begin in Victoria on June 18, July 16 and July 30.

P & O liner Arcadia

The 720-foot Arcadia will bring a shipload of tourists to Ogden Point on June 26 as part of a circle cruise of Vancouver Island which begins in California, pauses at Vancouver and continues through the Inside Passage and round to Victoria before returning to San Francisco and Los Angeles.

The final cruise of the summer for the Arcadia will leave Vancouver Aug. 7 with stops in San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco, ending in Vancouver Aug. 16.

The Arcadia was built in 1954 and can accommodate more than 1,300 persons when filled to capacity. On the summer cruises the number of passengers is reduced to provide additional space in dining rooms, on games decks and at swimming pools.

There will be only one class instead of the usual two.

Whimsical Jogging Problem to Patrols

A jogger who carries a shopping bag with an empty milk bottle inside at 4 a.m. runs the risk of being picked up by a police officer, who might charge him with vagrancy.

That's what happened to T. Byron McNutt of 459 Grange. "I do a 10-mile jog twice a week," McNutt said Tuesday in Victoria Provincial Court, where he stood trial on the vagrancy charge.

"And that's not the first time I got stopped," he added. To be considered a vagrant, a person must be without apparent means of support, have no fixed address and be unable to explain his presence at the time and place of arrest.

And that's where the hangup was in McNutt's case.

DAIRY FARMER

He has lived at the same address for more than 50 years, and he is the owner of a dairy farm on Wilkes Road.

He told court that he had been stopped on previous occasions.

once by an auxiliary policeman who was under the influence of alcohol.

"There were two of them. One became quite abusive—he was half tanked, the other was pretty level-headed," McNutt said.

ALLOWED TO GO

"After a few minutes I was allowed to go, but a few nights later, the same thing happens, and by this time I'm getting fed up with the whole business."

He said he told the officers that they could get all information at their office because he had been questioned a few nights before, but the policemen wouldn't take that for an answer.

"One gets out of the car, sneaks behind me and pushes me. I fall down, and the next thing I know he's riding me. I thought, well, if they want to give me any rough stuff they'll do it now, and I covered my head."

When he was arrested Monday morning he first argued with the police officers, McNutt said.

"When I finally told him my name, he says that I'm too late," Victoria Constable F. W. Mills told court that he asked the accused for his name, address and reason for his running along the street.

"He just said that he was going to Saanich, asking me if I knew where that was."

NO BLAME

Judge William Ostler said he couldn't blame anyone involved in the case.

"It's difficult for police officers in these troubled times of increasing crime all over the continent to distinguish between honest and established citizens who engage in a somewhat whimsical conduct and a person who is trying to hide something."

Whimsical conduct was no offence, he said, and he hoped never would be, but is should be noted that the policeman had reason to be suspicious.

The case was dismissed.

Recipe of the Week

BRANDIED STEAKS

Trim almost all the fat from a 10-oz., inch-thick steak. Preheat skillet until sizzling. To prevent sticking, add butter. Brown steak quickly on one side for 1 minute. Reduce heat. Add 2 tbs. finely chopped onions and 4 sliced mushrooms; cook 2 minutes. Turn, cook over medium heat for about 6 minutes or until desired doneness. Add 1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce and 2 tbs. brandy. To ignite sauce, pull blazer pan to edge of chafing dish flame and tilt slightly away from you, or light with a match. Slide the pan back and forth while blazing to blend the sauce well. When flame is about extinguished, remove the steak to a heated plate and spoon the sauce over the steak. Garnish with water cress and serve with baked potato or wild rice. Serves 1.
